EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE great battle is ended.

THE country is safe once again.

LORD LONSDALE has gone back to England.

PREPARE to give thanks on the 25th of November.

THE earth continues to tremble in the Sunny South.

WELL, yes; the situation in Europe is decidedly warlike.

HENRY WARD BEECHER is in America again, but declines to be interviewed.

WITH the approach of the winter season begins the time for fairs, festivals, home concerts and local lectures.

REV. DR. PHILIPS BROOKS, of Boston, preached on Sunday, October 31, very earestly in opposition to the exclusive tendencies of the Episcopal church.

GERMANY, France, Austria and Russia all offer bounties to sugar manufacturers, and this is the reason why more sugar is now made in Europe than in all the tropical and semi-tropical countries of the world.

IT was the deadly car stove that caused the burning of the coach and the great fatality in the railroad accident at Rio, Minn. Some other means of heating passenger coaches should be used.

THE dedication of Bartholdi's statue was participated in by a million of people. The President and Senator Evarts honored the occasion with speeches. The statue did not frighten at the length of any of Senator's sentences. Bedloe's Island, New York harbor, now contains the highest bronze figure in the world. We hope that this country will always enlighten the world correctly in the lessons of liberty.

GOVERNOR LEE, of Virginia, and his secession friends had laid a nice little trap for the President and his wife at Richmond during the reception that was to be given to the latter upon their arrival at Richmond. By some means the President smoked out the fact that the daughter of Jeff Davis was to assist Mrs. Governor Lee in receiving the President and his party, when, thinking that he could hardly afford to see his wife and the great secessionist's daughter hob-nobbing without the fact creating unfavorable comment at the North, he prudently left his better-half at home in charge of the White House.

The New York Earthquakes,—Their Cause,—The Mayoralty,—The Eclectic College,—The Sunday Papers, etc.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27, 1886.

OTHER EARTHQUAKES.

This has been a season of earthquakes; and the political social and financial earthquakes which have convulsed New York city the past few months, have been more disastrous to business and human happiness than the kind which wrought such destruction to property in Charleston and other Southern towns.

The municipal government of this city has been shaken to its foundations, as one after an other of prominent and trusted officials have been found guilty of malfeasance in office, of downright robbery of the city funds aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars. Honesty has been the exception and not the rule among men who have held high positions of trust and honor in New York. It was bad enough under the Tweed regime. It is worse now. One of the bribe-taking aldermen is in Sing Sing, several are in Canada, and about a dozen more in the city under indictment and heavy bail bonds, including the shrewd man who paid the bribes for their votes. Of the bank presidents, cashiers, and other embezzlers who have made Canada their "city of refuge" during the past two years, the number is too formidable to be readily counted.

THE CAUSE.

That many of these persons would have remained honest under a less strain of circumstance and temptation we suppose must be allowed. For the primary cause of such general defalcation, and abuse of trust, occurring in one city, we must look deeper than personal innate depravity. The beguiling serpent of temptation is to be found in the modern structure of New York society, so far removed from the simplicity and probity of the early Knickerbocker times. The orgies of concentrated wealth are worse than all other revelries and have the mene tekel upharsin of Belshazzar's feast written upon their walls. Families of wealth vie with each other in making the most gorgeous displays of ornamentation of both their homes and persons; and through their influence such shows of grandeur and finery becomes the fashion of the times; and ladies and gentlemen are not admitted into the first society unless heralded by such grand pagentry of riches.

The ambition, therefore, of the wives and daughters of bankers, brokers, merchants and of thrifty tradesmen, is to secure entre into the fashion-en chanted castles of wealth. For this they push the father, or husband, to verge of madness—and for this these fathers and husbands become defaulters and robbers. The tendency of the age, in large cities, through the allurements and enticements of the irrational fashion-life made by money, is to the dishonor of woman and to the ruin of the best manhood of man. The remedy lies with the rich; they can make society better, and largely remove temptation from the weak by adopting a mode of living wherein pride and display will be more subservient to simplicity, dignity and common sense.

THE MAYORALTY.

With New Yorkers the election for Mayor is characteristic with all the importance, and intensity of political strife pertaining to Presidential elections. We have now three distinct parties. The workingmen have at least succeeded in bringing their organization up to the dignity of a party; and they have placed in nomination as a candidate for the Mayorality Mr. Henry George a gentleman of unassailable character, of good literary ability, but a decided crank upon socialistic problems and political economy.

The Democrats have made a union of Tammany with other noted clans of the party, and placed in nomination Mr. Abram S. Hewitt, a strong man in the social and business circles of New York, and having a fair national reputation as a statesman.

Mr. Theodore Roosevelt is the Republican candidate for Mayor. Mr. Roosevelt is comparatively a young man, but of considerable experience in public affairs. His record for capacity and integrity is unimpeachable. He will have the support of the leading business men of the city. The real contest will be between these two candidates. Mr. Hewitt and Mr. Roosevelt. The American people are not yet ready to adopt the Agrarianism of the European anarchists.

EDUCATIONAL—THE ECLECTIC COLLEGE.

New York has many very important educational institutions. In the line of medical colleges Philadelphia, for a long time, held the lead, but this city is now in the advance. The hospital facilities here are greater than of any other city, and are afforded to all the Colleges alike. One of these institutions which was considered an invasion of old established methods of medical instruction, when it was incorporated in this city about twenty years ago, has grown into recognition as a leading college of advanced medical science and teaching. We refer to the "Eclectic Medical College" which was established by the late Dr. Newton. Mr. Samuel Sinclair, who was for many years one of the publishers of the New York Tribune, is now President of the Board of Trustees, and Geo. W. Boskovitz, M. D., is Dean of the Faculty. The success of this college shows that the science of medicine has been forced into the general line of progress. New remedies, and new methods of practice are adopted with little regard to the teachings and demands of the "old schools."

THE SUNDAY PAPERS.

The Sunday newspapers of New York are marvels of journalistic enterprise and success. Before the advent into this city of Mr. Joseph Pulitzer from St. Louis to take charge of the failing New York "World" establishment Bennett's "Herald" was almost out-of-sight ahead of any other city journal. Now the "World" leads the "Herald" by over 100,000 copies of its Sunday issue. For the last six weeks the "World" has published a Sunday edition of over 250 000 copies, and of 28 pages. No other paper in the world can boast of such success. The truth is Mr. Pulitzer is a man of broad views, nd although nominally democratic he spares not his own party in his criticism of public affairs. This growth in the field of journalism however is not to be credited to the talent or business capacity of any one man. It comes from the demand caused by the increasing intelligence of the common people, and this intelligence is but an out--growth of our common school system.

The unveiling of the great Bartholdi Statue of Liberty will occur to-morrow, and we shall try, in a separate article, to furnish the readers of the "Republican" with an account of the ceremonies. HIRAM TORREY.

Civil Service Deceit.

We have concluded, after serious consideration, that Democratic civil services is a delusion and a fraud. We are not much in favor of civil service, anyway; but consider it an absolute and intentional burlesque as practiced at present. It is used to the injury of Republicans and to the benefit of Democrats. It seems to be practiced by the Democratic administration for a reason somewhat akin to that which induced the wolf to wear sheep's clothing. The way it is put in force is about as follows: An order is issued forbidding office holders to take active part in politics, and the delivery of speeches by an office-holder is said to be an act of offensive partisanship.

But only once in a hundred times is the order executed. Democrats may go to their homes and take part in the political work and it will escape the attention of the President; but if a Republican does so, he at once receives a letter stating that his further services will not be required. If an explanation is asked for this act of "offensive partisanship" is cited as the cause.

It is perhaps well that Mugwumpian civil service is thus practiced, as people will the sooner be disgusted with it; and the quicker a thing that is wrong in itself is done away with the better it will be. Until politics itself can be proved to be wrong, men should never be placed in a position where they are incapacitated from participating in it. It is the duty of every man to take an active part in the choice of officials, great and small: and the fact that he is himself an official should not be a hindrance. Of course, when his time given to this interferes with the time he should devote to the affairs of his office than a halt must be called to his over zealous partizanship, But his trangression then is not offensive partizanship, but neglect of official duty.

SECRETARY MANNING Friday resumed charge of the Treasury Department, and it is to be hoped that his health has been fully recovered. The country could ill spare the only member of the Cabinet who has been a credit to the administration.

The Danger from the South.

The terrible danger which menaces the laborer of the North was pointed out in a speech made a few days ago at Scranton by James G. Blaine. We give the principal part verbatim:

"Whenever a country gives up the object of maintaining a good rate of wages for the laboring man it becomes a free-trade country. It then attempts to force the manufacturer of every article to so low a rate that it can compete with every other country. The free-trade policy in the United States is represented entirely by and is indissolubly wedded to the Democratic party. Were it not for the Southern States there would be no Democratic party. Were it not for these States the Democratic party would cease to exist. These States have the cheapest labor in the world to-day, among civilized people. I do not refer to the Pagan countries, of course, but among civilized and Christian countries of the world there does not exist so large a mass of efficient laborers working at such a low rate of compensation as in the Southern States of this Nation.

"Those States, since the shock of war is over, have sent into the markets of the world, not counting what has been used for home consumption, more than a thousand million of dollars' worth of cotton in excess of all they ever sent prior to the war. Let me repeat that. The value of the cotton exported from the Southern States since the close of the war exceeds the value of all that was ever exported from the time cotton was first planted in the South up to the time of the inauguration of President Lincoln by about one thousand millions of dollars. I refer to this to show how industrious is the free negro, for all the cotton is raised by negro labor, by the classes which cannot cast a single effective vote in that whole region, all wrought by the class that does not enjoy any representation, that gets no hearing.

"No, Mr. Chairman, it even does not stop there, for the representatives assigned them on their numbers are robbed from them, and in consequence they are in the power of the white men of that region, who in consequence has a political power individually just double that of the men who for four years served in the ranks of the Union army. (Applause.)

"With this cheap labor in the south, they are inevitably a free-trade people. If a man brings himself up, if an entire community brings themselves to treating the southern negro as he is treated, if they bring themselves up to the point of denying him representation, and practically denying him civil rights, they can easily grind him down to a scale of wages, which, measured over the entire mass of the vast population stretching from the Potomac to the Rio Grande, averages less than a third of that paid to white men in the northern States. (Applause.) It is impossible, if that labor becomes skilled—and it rapidly does become skilled in a great many of the minor-trades but that it must result greatly to the disadvantage of the laboring classes in the north.

"I do not use language severely, I think, when I say that the time is at hand to fight this gigantic conspiracy against the laborers in this country, a conspiracy which if not arrested, if not destroyed, will work the most serious injury to every white laborer in the United States. This question is before us to-day It was before us in Maine, and it is before you in Pennsylvania. It is a question from which there is no hope of escape, no opportunity of exit for any Republican. The national and State administrations of the Democratic party do not put forth one solitary effort to relieve the condition of the southern laborer, and on account of the general indifference we all feel to the weal of our neighbor when dollars and cents are considered, I should not feel sanguine of relief coming even now, except that it strikes at the white men of the north.

"At the hottest part of the battle of Waterloo, when the balls were reaching beyond the ranks of the common soldiers and striking near the headquarters of the Iron Duke, one of the aids on his staff cried out, "Why d—n it, My Lord Duke, they are firing at us.' (Applause.) A very different thing you will see from firing at the common soldiers away down in the valley below, and I tell you, laboring men of Pennsylvania. Iron Dukes in the wide field of toil, the Democratic party, with its free-trade policy, is firing at you."

JUDGE HARRY WHITE, of Indiana Co., by a late ruling, holds that persons convicted of selling liquor to minors must undergo an imprisonment; that the imprisonment is a necessity in order that the penalty of the law may be properly enforced; that it is not in the discretion of the court, but an imperative duty.

A Sad Experience.

Almost as rapid as an arrow in its flight may come the shock of sorrow. The brightest thoughts and pleasantest memories may be changed into dark grief in an instant. The happy look and pleased smile will vanish and grief and despair will take their place.

Last week a large company of people occupied a train which moved at the rate of forty miles per hour over one of the railroads in Minnesota. Feelings and impulses of every description actuated these people. Doubtless, some were very happy, others correspondingly sad according to their seperate experiences and dispositions. But an event occurred which plunged them all into immessurable woe. A freight train had passed ahead and the switch had been left open. The engine passed from the track dragging a passenger coach with it. The sudden stopping of the train sent the passengers wounded and bleeding from their seats. The car caught fire and the exhausted people fought vainly to escape. The coach, telescoped at both ends, forbid all escape and there they met death in its most horrible form. Some of these people were full of delightful anticipations, for they were going to visit friends. Others were concerned with the cares of this life—on pleasure bent. Perhaps some were sad, for their mission was to attend a relative's funeral. There were three who were members of a holy order and they probably met their death with that place and dignity that characterized their calling in life.

The engineer did his full duty in remaning at his post and stopping the engine sooner, says Bishop Whipple, than he ever knew it to be done before. The conductor cast one look at the horrible catastrophe and realizing that it had happened while the train was in his charge, he rushed into the woods—a maniac.

It was only one of many instances where sorrow came to so many suddenly and sharply. Death cut off twenty-six of them and their friends mourn their horrible fate. It was a sorrow which to many will be life-long in its effects.

"GATH," in his letter to the Cincinnati Enquirer, refers thus to Blaine: "It is now ten years since Blaine has been a standing Presidential candidate. His popularity seems to grow by the opposition to him. Those who dislike him are few, bitter and have lost more bappiness and composure merely in attacking him than he has in submitting to their attacks. His political opponents, as well as to his friends, can admire the gentility of his address. The soft answer which turns away wrath he has excelled by not answering at all. He leaves to small minds and forked tongues the monotony of their abuse, and goes at his work as a party leader, an organizer and public orator with a calmness and a glow which is one of the healthiest expressions of the present day."

GENERAL NOTES.

Gen Swaim has petitioned the President for a review of his court-martial case.

Nevada beef is being shipped to California in an almost unbroken string of cattle cars.

One freighter has transported over 75,000 pounds of wool out of the Black Hills this season.

The postoffice at Mt. Vernon, O., was robbed early Saturday morning of $2,000 in money and stamps.

Frank H. Walworth, who killed his father in New York in 1873, died at Saratoga Friday, aged 31 years.

Charles H. Bestor, Henry Bestor and George Colby, Jr., have been indicted at Chardon, O., for killing John Johnson.

There have been shipped from Maine this year 200,000 tons of ice, which is 84,000 tons more than were shipped last year.

H. S. Herzog & Co., wholesale clothiers of Cincinnati, have assigned to Louis Kramer. Assets, $100,000; liabilities, $150,000.

Miss Lena Fairbanks, a maiden of 13 summers, has been sentenced to 2 years' imprisonment in a Michigan jail for horse stealing.

A 75-pound box of dynamite exploded within 8 feet of 17 working men the other day in Birmingham, Ala., and not one of the men was injured.

A Schuylkill county candidate has his wife electioneer for him. She goes around and invites crowds of farm hands to get treated and vote for her husband.

The Methodist University at Chattanooga was opened only a month ago, but now has 200 students. It is one of the finest institutions of learning in the South.

A colored octogenarian is actively engaged in cutting railroad ties in the woods near Suffolk, Va. He is said to be the grandfather of 116 grandchildren, and great grandfather of about 100 great-grandchildren.

During the past year Danville, Va., has sold over 40,000,000 pounds of tobacco and Lynchburg nearly 50,000,000 pounds. The most of it was raised in the country contiguous to these cities. The aggregate value was about $8 000,000.

The gradual increasing scarcity of game is one of the most striking evidences of the settling of Western lands. Fifteen years ago buffalo meat was no great catch in New York, while in St. Louis it was often a drug in the market.

An Auburn, N. Y., father tied his daughter to a bed post to prevent her leaving the house to marry the man she loved. Then he paraded the front yard with a revolver to make it certain that the young man should not carry her off without his knowledge.

A party of gentlemen and ladies who visited the peninsula opposite Erie last Saturday, found raspberry bushes in blossom, with green and ripe berries. At that time strawberry blossoms; were plentiful over there, and several so-call-spring flowers have bloomed again.

"People who contemplate playing at Monte Carlo during the aproaching season," says London Truth, "will be interested to hear that the Paris Mint is at present striking a new supply of gold coins for the Prince of Monaco, who has ordered £80,000 worth, in pieces of £24 each."

Hector, Mrs. Cleveland's dog, is declared by a Washington correspondent not to be such a terrible favorite with his mistress as everyone about the White House would have a person to suppose. He would much rather be in the kitchen or pantry, with Sinclair, than acting propriety up stairs.

Our consul at Bordeaux, France, says a simple way to test the purity of olive oil is to put a small quantity on a piece of bread, then masticate it, and if, after swallowing, a disagreeable taste remains in the mouth the oil can safely be condemned. If, on the contrary, a sweet taste remains, the oil is pure.

It is said that the largest number of hitherto unknown black letter volumes which were lately found rotting away in a cellar at Seville formed part of a library brought together by Ferdinando Columbus, son of the great Christopher. M Harrisse, the French bibliophile, is compiling a biography of these treasures.

Of the machinery imported into Austro-Hungary in the three quarters of this year, 55 per cent. came from England 37 per cent. from Germany, 7 per cent. from Switzerland, and 1 per cent. from Italy, France, Belgium and America. The machines imported from England were chiefly destined for the cotton and linen industries.

The Italian Ministry directed that the great collection of musical works which formed part of the Musical Library in Rome shall be transferred to the Accademia di Santa Cecilla. The collection has been described as the richest of its kind in the world, and the catalogue of musical works which it contains is said to be the most complete in existence.

A new use for the tobacco plant has been discovered. Its stems and waste, it is claimed, are equal to linen rags in the manufacture of paper. Tobacco waste costs less than $10 a ton, linen rags $70 to $80. There is no expense in assorting the former and very little shrinkage, as against a loss of one-third of rags. The yearly tobacco waste is estimated by the census reports at from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 of pounds.

In the Peoria campaign in which two brothers are running for the office of Alderman, Jake, when nominated, declared he would begin the campaign with a mouth organ, and he did so. The other hunted up a fiddle and the brothers entertained vast crowds on opposite street corners. Both are millionaires twice over, and spend money lavishly. They are dead in earnest, and the Peoria Board of Trade is about evenly divided in their support.

Poetry.

A KISS—BY MISTAKE.

Upon the railway train we met
She had the softest, blue-t eyes,
A face you never could forget—
"Sixteen," with all that that implies.
I knew her once, a little girl,
And meeting now a mutual friend,
Our thought and hearts got in a whirl;
We talked for miles without much end.

I threw my arms around the seat
Where just in front, she sideways sat,
Her melting eyes and face to meet
[And no one wondered much at that].
For soon the station where she left
Would on the sorrowing vision rise,
And I at least should feel bereft;
I thought a tear stood in her eyes.

She was but kith, not kin, of mine—
Ten years had passed since last we met;
And when, in going, she did decline
Her face, 'twas natural to forget.
It seemed so like the child I knew,
I met her half-way for that sake;
And coming near those eyes of blue,
She gently kissed me—by mistake!

She saw her error, and straightway ran
With flaming blushes, rosy red;
I should not be one-half a man
If thought o wrong came in my head;
In fact, I'd take that very train
And travel daily for her sake,
If she would only come again
And gently kiss me—by mistake!

THE TALE OF LIFE.

"HAFIZ IN LONDON."

Man is to-day what man was yesterday
Will be to-morrow; let him curse or pray
Drink or be dull, he learns not nor shall learn
The lesson that will laugh the world away.

The world as gray or just as golden shines,
The wine as sweet or just as bitter flows,
For you as me; and you, like me, may find
Perfume or canker in the reddest rose.

The tale of life is hard to understand;
But while the cup waits ready to your hand
Drink and declare the summer roses blow
As red in London as in Samarcand.

Lips are as sweet to kiss and eyes as bright
As ever flattered Omar with delight,
English or Persian, while the mouth is fair
What can it matter how it says good-night?

WHERE'S PHYLLIS?

RONDEL.

Where is Phyllis? Who has taken
From my heaven its brightest star?
Lost to me must she remain?
Where is Phyllis?

Something says she is not far—
That my search is not in vain—
Phyllis, tell me where you are!

No reply. As well refrain.
Ha! She's there! behind that jar,
[Of the finest porcelain
Ware is Phyllis.]

Our Story Teller.

UNLUCKY NED.

"I knew it—I knew it!" sobbed the poor woman. "Oh, Heaven bless you, sir, for bringing me such news? And now, as you are kind, be merciful—tell me all you know about him. Were you his friend? Yes, yes, you were—I see it in your face—you knew him well—were with him when he—died—received the last words—the last words he sent to me—to me—his poor broken-hearted wife—across the cruel sea! Oh, in pity——"

"My dear Mrs. Heyland, pray compose yourself!" cried Irving uneasily, feeling that he was fast losing his head under the moving appeal of her beautiful eyes. "It is a long story, and you are so agitated, I really think I had——"

"Oh, sir, do not trifle with me! I have lived but for this hour! I am not agitated, I assure you; I can bear anything now but suspense—anything. I see by your looks, your manner, that you have something of importance to reveal to me about his last moments. Oh, I can bear it—tell me—tell me—tell me!"

She leaned forward, almost kneeling at his feet; seizing his hands, she clasped them firmly in her own, holding them against her heaving shoulder. He colored, shifted, wriggled, tried to free himself in vain.

Three minutes later, Mrs. Flynn, passing the window en route to her fowl-pen, looked in casually, and there and then beheld a tableau which "just tuk every blessed breath" out of her body, and sent her dish of meal all over the place—a tableau representing Mrs. Heyland, that most prim and prudish of widows, encircled by the arms of "a beardless impudent brat of a boy" who was not aware of her identity twenty minutes before, her golden head resting contentedly on his shoulder.

"Well," panted the worthy lady, "if that doesn't bang Banagher, I don't know what does! Oh, you are a precious scamp, you are—a regular wanderin' Don June! In all my born days I never—— What! You want me, do ye?"—for Irving was waving his free arm in urgent appeal to her. "I suppose I had betther see what's up? I—I suppose I'd better!"

"Mrs. Flynn, Mrs. Flynn," he cried, as she bustled in, "quick, quick! Look at this lady! I broke some news to her too hastily, and she went off like this; tell me quickly—have I killed her?"

"Not this time, young man," she replied, after a professional survey; "it's only a faint. See—her eyelash is quivering already! Just leave her to me, and I'll bring her round in five minutes. Good news was it—eh?"

"The best."

"Off wid ye then!"

"Well," soliloquised Irving, drawing a long breath, "I did make a precious mull of it, and no mistake! Couldn't have made a bigger if I had tried on purpose! Hanged if I go in for circumlocution again! It didn't kill her; the chances are plain speaking won't kill him."

He burst into the room where Heyland still sat in the attitude in which he had left him, and opened fire in this wise—

"Heyland, I want to ask you a question that's been bothering me—about old Enoch What's-his-name—Arden, I mean. I suppose now, for argument's sake, before he went off and died in easy poetical fashion, he made sure that—that his wife, whom he saw sitting by the fire with the baby in her arms, was really mistress of the house and mother of the child, and not—not—a sister-in-law, a—a nursery-maid, or a poor relation paying a Christmas visit there—eh?"

"What d'ye mean? What are you driving at, Irving? How dare you ask me such a question?" he panted wildly.

"I mean that you've been an ass, an unmitigated blundering ass, Heyland—rushing at conclusions, taking things for granted."

"Irving!"

"Hands off, Heyland! I mean that the lady we saw last night was not O'Callaghan's wife, but his children's governess, and that she still bears the name you gave her on your wedding-day, and means to bear it to her grave. Now digest that, old man, quietly and thankfully here in this room for about ten minutes, and then I'll come back for you, and perhaps let you make the next move yourself."

He went out hurriedly, closing the door firmly after him, and descended below, where Alice, completely recovered, with flushed cheeks and radiant eyes, pinioned him again.

"Dear boy, you see I am not dead! Happiness cannot kill; tell me where and when you saw him last—in—in Australia?"

"N-o—not exactly in Australia."

"In—in—England?"—"N-o—not exactly in England."

"Ah!" A quick smothered cry.

"Alice!"—"Edward!"

Irving turned and flew towards the door; but, before he could reach it, husband and wife were clasped in each other's arms—at last!

* * * * *

Some hours later, after a refreshing tramp for miles and miles along the silent sands, Irving was stealing forth from Mrs. Flynn's hospitable quarters, portmanteau in hand, to eat his dinner in exile at a Dublin hotel, naturally concluding that the long-parted lovers would wish to spend their evening in sacred seclusion, when suddenly a soft white hand seized the one which clutched his property and a hard brown one came down smartly on his shoulder.

"Oh, Mr. Irving, Mr. Irving," cried Alice reproachfully, "is this the way you were going to treat us? Shame, shame!"

"By Jove, Irving, I couldn't have believed it of you! This is the shabbiest trick I ever saw played in my life!" added Heyland indignantly. "Better not let Mrs. Flynn hear of it—that's all! Gertie love, will you replace this gentleman's hat on the stand in the hall? That's a good child. My daughter, Jack! Will you take her in to dinner, please?"

G. F. SMITH.

GUY'S CHORISTER.

The setting sun shone through the great stained window of the music-room at Deepdene, lighting up the organ and the two figures before it, reminding one of Dicksee's picture of "Harmony," where the warm sunlight streams through a painted window and falls on two figures at an organ.

But here the resemblance ceased, for both inmates of the apartment were girls. One—she who was seated with her hand on the keys—had a pale intellectual face whose regularity of feature was its least charm, while the other, who stood behind, was at ordinary times barely pretty, but on occasions such as this, when the fire of enthusiasm lit up her changing gray eyes and the sunlight turned her hair to masses of burnished gold, was remarkably so.

She had just finished singing, and the vaulted roof of the room still rang with the echo of her voice. Her eyes were full of tears as she laid her hand on her friend's shoulder.

"It is glorious!" she exclaimed enthusiastically. "Guy is a great musician, and this"—she touched the manuscript music open on the organ—"will live when we are dust."

Guy's sister turned towards her with a grateful look.

"I think it will," she said simply. "It is very beautiful. How I wish he could hear you sing it!"

Fides Grimswold shrugged her shoulders with a slight impatient gesture.

"It seems to be of no use wishing, Theo. He avoids Deepdene as if it were smitten by the pestilence, and shuns me as though I, instead of being his dear little friend of a year or two ago and his cousin, were his deadliest enemy."

"The year or two must be stretched out to twelve, Fides! More than a decade has passed since Guy used to romp with you and call you his little wife and you were only seven. You can't have forgotten how you cried when for the last time he crossed the threshold of Deepdene, and your—and his—grandfather swore he should never cross it again."

"How cruel it was of grandpapa, Theo! It was the only unjust deed I ever knew him to do. What made him so hard and unforgiving?"

Her companion's cheeks flushed; then she looked up proudly.

"We never talk of it, Fides; but you must not think it is because we are ashamed. Our mother—Guy's and mine—was the old man's favorite child. He had this room built, and gave her this organ the day she was eighteen, because she loved music so much. And then—then she ran away with her music-master, and her father never saw her again. They say that it was the most terrible grief of his life, and that he was a changed man from that time; but I cannot blame her, for she gave us the truest, dearest father ever children were blessed with. I am proud of him, of his profession, his courage, and his genius. He would have been great, I am sure, if he had not died so young—though, thank Heaven, he lived long enough to leave us with a memory we shall never lose!"

"And your mother?"

"They loved too well to be long separated, and the latter part of her life seemed to go with his. It was only as she lay dying, leaving us two helpless children alone and friendless, that she asked her father's forgiveness for herself and protection for us. Even then he would not see her, but he gave his promise to help her little ones. So we came to Deepdene, and on our arrival you, a tiny child with a pale face and fair hair, came forward in a black dress—you too had lost those nearest and dearest to you—to receive us. I shall never forget how grandfather led you out and said to you, in his stately way, 'Take your cousin's hand, my child. It is right that the mistress of my house should welcome my heir.'"

"And you, Theo?"

Miss Hallam laughed good-humoredly.

"Oh, I was ignored then, as afterwards! But I did not mind so long as you and Guy were provided for. Between you I knew I should be well taken care of."

Fides Grimswold meditated for a little; then she said questioningly—

"My grandfather spoke of Guy as his heir?"

Her companion looked embarrassed.

"You know he changed his mind," she answered, with some hesitation. "When, at seventeen, Guy insisted on following his father's profession, and I naturally decided to throw in my fortunes with him, it was not at all remarkable that our grandfather, being the man he was, should do as he did and cast us off altogether."

"But Guy need not retaliate on me," the younger girl said petulantly. "Why should he have refused to visit Deepdene—why have scorched me with his contempt and have flung back my 'charity,' as he was cruel enough to call it, on that miserable occasion when I came to see you both two years ago?"

"Guy is proud, dear, and the wound was too fresh for even your gentle hand to touch it. He dearly loved the old man, and you—you had taken his place."

"But not willingly! I would hand over the estates to him to-morrow if he would take them. That's the worry and responsibility! That's the idea—that no one can love me for myself, or will marry me but for my money; and I detest the money that has estranged me from—from the friends who loved me as a child!"

Miss Hallam laughed softly.

"It has not estranged me," she said; "but then I am not too proud to accept frankly the invitation you gave us so willingly to come and live here in our old home and share freely in all the good things of this life—above all, in the love of my impulsive little cousin." As she spoke she stroked gently the other's shining hair.

Tears started to Fides's eyes, and an old aching yearning rose in her heart as she returned the caress.

"I wish," she began, then stopped with a sigh.

"You wish?" her companion said interrogatively.

The girl turned and walked to the window. The last rays of the sun were still flickering on the terraced gardens; but in the distance, over the spires of the old gray Minster, a great yellow moon rose slowly.

"Why is everything at such cross-purposes?" she sighed. "And why does only the unattainable seem worth having? When we are babies, we think that, if we cry for the moon yonder, it will come down to us; but we live and learn, and bitter experience teaches that it never even looks at us."

Her companion crossed to where she stood. She was a tall finely-formed woman of over thirty, and she looked down at her cousin with a loving air of amusement. She took Fides's chin in her hand and turned her face upward till the troubled eyes looked straight into hers—then with a pleasant laugh released her hold.

"My dear," she said, "you have let me into a little secret. Shall I tell you a story in exchange?"

Fides blushed violently.

"I don't know what you mean," she answered; "but I am ready to hear anything you like to tell me."

"Well," the elder lady began, "my story—which of course is laid in the classic days of 'once upon a time'—begins with the loves of a little boy and girl. They had, I need hardly say, the orthodox old uncle, who loved them very dearly, but not well enough to let them be happy in their own way. So, when the pleasant days of childhood had passed, and the genius in the boy made him long to go into the world and seek fame and fortune there, his uncle sought, as orthodox uncles always do, to detain him, and, failing in that, disinherited him. With a boy's love for that little maid the boy left his dear old home, and for twelve long years her image dwelt in his heart. In that sacred shrine where he had placed it he worshiped daily, and day by day it grew till it took the form of a fair and gracious maiden. At last he returned, a man, to find his ideal realized in the woman he had left a child, and his boyish love was changed into a man's devotion."

The shadows grew longer in the room as the moon climbed higher in the sky. Fides clasped her friend's hand, but did not utter a word.

"I may drop allegory," Miss Hallam continued, "for you know that I speak of Guy and you. I should never have told you this, dear, had I not read the confession in your eyes."

"But, if it is true," the girl asked breathlessly, "why does he not come near me? If he loves me"—a great joy shone in her eyes—"why should he not tell me so?"

"You are rich and he is poor—a sufficient reason for a man like Guy. But he has another reason, and, unless he knew that you loved him——"

"Unless he knew! Oh, Theo, he might guess how dear he has always been to me! What can I do if his pride so stands between us? How I hate this wretched money that separates us! Why did not my grandfather leave it to Guy, whose it was by right, and so have spared us this wretchedness? Why won't Guy take it from me now? I should not be too proud to tell him I loved him, were it his, if he cared for me."

Her companion smiled.

"Things that seem terribly warped and twisted when we are nineteen, my dear, have a way of disentangling themselves by the time we reach nine-and-twenty. Have patience and faith, Fides, and all will come right—it may be, sooner than you think. If this cantata, from which we all hope so much, should prove the success I, for one, expect, and Guy find himself famous, I should not wonder if he took courage then and acted on the belief which I have tried to instil into him, genius is a fair exchange for gold."

"It must succeed, Theo! How can such music, in which every note is full of genius, fail?"

The elder girl shook her head.

"I believe as implicitly in the greatness of the work as you do, my dear; and I am certain that sooner or later it will be found to have the mainspring of life in it, and so, whether we live to see it or no, will be honored in days to come as the works of the masters from whom Guy has learned are honored now. But, though nowadays it is easier than of old for living worth to gain its just acknowledgement, there are yet a thousand things that may occur to prevent its being properly appreciated and to hinder its showing itself, even to unprejudiced eyes, in the most favorable light. To my mind, Guy is doing a very foolish thing in having his work performed for the first time in the Cathedral and by the choristers, in place of in the concert-hall, where first-class singers might have undertaken it."

"But could any other place be so suitable for its representation? What is needed to enhance the deep religious feeling of the music but the corresponding sanctity of our old Minster?"

"Both of you look at the question from the artist's unpractical point of view, Fides, while I regard the matter with the eye of the general public, and apprehend the difficulties. But I need say no more about it! I have already argued with my brother on the subject till I am tired, and, as neither your ideas nor my convictions have any possible bearing on it, we may as well drop them both. In fact, I don't want to talk any more about the coming ordeal. I am not naturally nervous, but I confess I should not mind going to sleep now and not awaking till Friday is safely over, and Guy's fortune, as he persists in saying it will be, made or marred. I believe he has put his very heart-throbs into this work, poor boy; and, if it fail, I dare not think what may be the consequence—he is so proud! Success and failure balance themselves almost evenly everywhere; and Guy's enemies——"

"Enemies! Where?" interrupted Fides.

"It is the penalty of genius to be hated even as its privilege is to be adored, my dear—perhaps one is the corollary of the other. But, putting that aside, I fear Guy has made—most innocently, I know—private and personal foes. To speak of one among many, you have only to watch old Luttrell in his presence to see how he detests him."

"But why?"

"Why? Because he supplanted him in the people's favor, and then deprived him of the right to feel himself ill-used. Do you know what Guy did, though I tried to show him that it was the most ridiculous Quixotism?"

Old Gentleman—"And how old are you, my little man?" Little Freddie—"I'm not old at all, sir; I'm nearly new."

MARY JONES;

Or, what a Welsh Girl did to Get a Bible.

BY REV. R. SHINDLER, ADDLESONE, ENGLAND.

Mary Jones was born in a very humble cottage, called Ty'n y ddal, in the small hamlet of Llanfihangel-y-Pennant, situate in a romantic valley at the southern foot of Cad r-Idris. This was in 1784, about a year before Mr. Charles commenced his Circulating Schools. The district was one of great attractions, but there were neither railways nor coaches then to open the scenes of wild beauty to the lovers of the picturesque. Now the narrow-gauge line from Towyn to Abergynolwyn takes one to within walking distance of what was then an isolated spot. In 1794, Mr. Charles established one of his circulating schools at Abergynolwyn, which was soon followed by a Sunday-school, both being under the superintendence of John Ellis. Mary Jones was one of his earliest pupils, though she had to walk two miles over a rough and exposed road. She was punctual in her attendance, a ready learner, and one able to store in her memory large portions of the Sacred Book, which was always in use. But Mary did not possess a Bible of her own. There was not one in the village. The nearest one she had access to was at a farm-house, two miles distant. To this she might freely go, and it was so that every week she went to read and search its pages, and store up its precious contents in her memory. For six years she did this, the desire of her heart gaining strength meanwhile, which was to possess a Bible of her own. But Bibles were dear, and her means were small, for her parents were poor. An occasional copper, however, did come in her way, and these stored up, a penny or a half-penny at a time, to accomplish her purpose. But where could a Bible be obtained? None of her neighbors could tell her. She heard, however, from one William Hugh, a preacher, who sometimes visited the little Calvinistic Methodist chapel, that a new edition of the Welsh Bible had been issued, and that if one was to be obtained anywhere it must be of Mr. Charles, of Bala. She was 16 years of age, and she had saved, as she had thought, about as much money as a Bible would cost. But Bala, though in the same county, was nearly 30 miles from her home, and though the road was unknown and the people at Bala strangers, she determined to travel thither, find out Mr. Charles, and buy a Bible if one could be had for money.

The show was still lying on the summit of old Cader-Idris, though spring had begun to rejoice at its sunny foot, when Mary Jones set out early for her long journey to Bala. This was in 1800, a year after the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge had issued its last edition of the Sacred Scriptures. A small bag or wallet had been lent her by a neighbor in which to bring back the treasure she hoped to secure. On her outward journey it sufficed to carry her shoes, and a little refreshment in the shape of coarse bread, which a draught here and there from the runlets she would pass in her way would serve to wash down. The air was clear, the skies were bright, and old Cader with his now cheerful face seemed to remind her of Him who, before the mountains were brought forth was from everlasting, the Refuge and Hope of all who trust in Him.

It was evening when she reached Bala, and too late to see Mr. Charles that night, for he observed the rule which all busy men should observe. "Early to bed and early to rise." But William Hugh had directed her in the first place to call on a venerable preacher named David Edward, and tell him her errand. The old man was at once won over to her cause.

"Well, my dear girl," said he, "it is too late to see Mr. Charles to-night; he is accustomed to retire to rest early, but he gets up with the dawn. You shall sleep here to-night, and we will go to him as soon as he gets up to-morrow, that you may be able to reach home before night."

The next morning David Edward awoke Mary from her sound sleep at an early hour. "Mr. Charles is up," said he, "for there is a light in his study."

The decisive moment was then near at hand. David Edward knocks at the door, and Mr. Charles himself answers it. It was an affecting scene, a memorable interview. Having expressed surprise at the early call of his friend, Mr. Charles invites them to his study.

David Edward introduces Mary, and tells her tale for her, enlarging more than she could have done on her weekly visits to the farm house, her long savings, her toilsome walk, and her great anxiety to possess a copy of the Divine Word. Mr. Charles questioned her at length, and drew from her many affecting facts of her personal history. Evidently touched by all these things he felt compelled to say, nevertheless: "I am extremely sorry to see this little girl, she having come all the way from Llanfihangel to buy a Bible; but there is not one to be had. All the Bibles I had from London have been disposed of months ago, excepting a few copies which I have reserved for a few friends according to promise. What I shall do for more Welsh Bibles I know not." There were marked compassion and tenderness in his tones, but his words pierced the heart of Mary. She burst into tears, and her cries and sobs were heard all over the house. Disappointment, distress lay hold upon her; long-deferred hope, now apparently dashed to the ground, made her sick and faint. It was a supreme moment. There was a struggle in the bosom of the humane minister. Mary Jones's tears vanquished him, doing what her words could not.

"Well," said Mr. Charles, "my dear girl, I find you must have a Bible, however difficult it is for me to give you one without disappointing other friends; it is impossible for me to refuse you."

So saying he handed her a Bible, and she handed him the money she had brought. She tried to speak her gratitude, but her tears flowed too fast—tears not now of distress, but of joy. It was a Bochim. Mr. Charles wept, old David Edward wept, and Mary wept. At length Mr. Charles said:

"If you are pleased, my girl to get a Bible, so am I pleased in giving it to you. Read it often, treasure it in your heart and be a good girl."

The way back to Llanfihangel was a lighter one than the way Bala, for now had not God granted her that which she desired of him? Sixty-six years after, when reciting these facts to Mr. Rees, she wept for joy at the goodness and faithfulness of God.

Mary Jones, having become possessed of a copy of her coveted treasure, proceeded, as is some times down at public meetings, by way of resolution. The first resolution was to read it through carefully and thoughtfully, word for word. This she did four times over. The second resolution was to read, search, and commit to memory chapters of her own new Bible. This also she fulfilled, storing up in her memory the Book of Job, the Psalms, Proverbs, Isaiah, the Gospels, the Epistles of John, the Epistles to the Romans, Ephesians, and that to the Hebrews. The third resolution was to read a portion of the blessed book every day of her life, and this she did as long as health permitted, until her death, in 1866.

In process of time Mary Jones was married to a weaver named Lewis, a Christian man, with whom she lived many years, becoming the mother of a numerous family. The latter part of her life she lived at the village of Bryncrug, near Towyn, Merionethshire. She was a faithful servant of God all her days, and though she was always poor, she always found money to help two causes, that of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and that of the Calvinistic Methodist Missionary Society. When Rev. J. A. James, of Birmingham, proposed, in 1854, to send a million Testaments to China, a collection was made at the chapel at Bryncrug. Beneath a heap of coppers was found one golden half-sovereign That was traced home to Mary Lewis, who was now a widow. How did she manage such a contribution? And how was it that she had always something to give? The fact is, she kept a large number of bees, for the cultivation of which industry her cottage was favorably situated. Her hives always flourished. Her honey was always good; and the bees were so well acquainted with her that they would settle upon her hand. They were fast friends, and never had a misunderstanding. Her yearly income from the honey covered the expenses of her household, and the proceeds of the wax was divided between the Bible Society and Missionary Society. On December 28, 1866, Mary Jones passed away to her long-desired rest. On her death-bed she gave her Bible to her pastor, Rev. Robert Griffeth, of Bryncrug. Mr. G. gave it, with a written account of her life, to Mr. R. O. Rees; Mr. Rees presented it to the library of the Calvinistic Methodist College at Bala; from which place it has been transferred, at the urgent request of the Committee, to the library of the British and Foreign Bible Society, in London.

Mary Jones little knew, when she toiled barefooted along the road to Bala, that the recital of her persevering efforts would clinch the nail which Mr. Charles had driven into the hearts of the Committee of the Religious Tract Society at their annual meeting, two years after, and thus help to bring into existence the great Bible Society she love so well. But so it was, for, "Thus saith the Lord, Who hath despised the day of small things?"

"Did you ever hear of the bolts of Jove?" asked a college student of his matter-of-fact father. "No," was the wondering reply. "What was Jove—a Mugwump?"

And when the victory shall be complete—when there shall be neither a slave or a drunkard on the earth—how proud the title of that land which may truly claim to be the birth place and the cradle of both those revolutions that shall have ended in that victory! How nobly distinguished that people who shall have planted and murtered to maturity both the political and moral freedom of their species.—Abraham Lincoln.

Niece (showing the wedding presents to Uncle George)—"I wanted you to see them all, dear Uncle George, so that you won't send a duplicate. Duplicate wedding presents are so annoying, you know." Uncle George—"H'm! What's this?" Niece—"That's papa's check for one thousand dollars. Isn't it lovely?" Uncle George—"Very. I intended to send the same thing, but rather than annoy you with a duplicate present I'll just make it five hundred."

A Whole Town Accepts Christianity.

A whole town of five hundred inhabitants on the coast of China, near Foochow, has adopted Christianity. In the suburbs was a mission chapel in charge of a native helper, and the town was occasionally visited by missionaries of the Church of England. Last summer the people became so angry with all foreigners, on account of the troubles between France and China, that the missionaries were obliged to discontinue their visits; but the native preacher kept on his work earnestly and faithfully. In midsummer cholera came to the village in a virulent form, and death followed death in quick succession. The terror-stricken people fled to their gods; but the one Christian besought them to come to the true God, who could hear their prayers and save them. Because of their despair they listened and joined with him in asking God to stay the plague; and God honored their faith, imperfect though it was, and the plague was stayed that day. The people then held a conference, and as a town they resolved to accept the new religion, and worship the God who helped them. Although some have fallen away since, the majority remain steadfast, and have contributed more than a hundred dollars to build a chapel.—Chinese Recorder.

Carrie's Explanation.

A young teacher in one of our primary departments spent the greater part of an afternoon in describing the appearance and habits of the mole to her class. And when she had finished she said: "Now, children, I want you all to try and remember what I have told you, for I shall call upon one of you to repeat it to-morrow."

Accordingly on the morrow she began by asking, "What did I talk about yesterday."

Up flew a dozen hands in the air, signifying that the owners were ready with the answer. "You may tell me, Carrie," said the young teacher, singling out a five-year old who had seemed uncommonly eager to be singled, and the five-year old, with a beaming smile, in a loud and cheerful voice proclaimed: "A wart."—Chicago Tribune.

A Governor's Cravat.

It was a great mystery to many people why Gov. Briggs, of Massachusetts, wore a cravat, but no collar. Some people thought it was an absurd eccentricity. Ah, no! This was the secret:

Many years before he was talking with an inebriate and telling him that his habit was unnecessary, when the inebriate retorted upon him and said:

"We do a great many things that are unnecessary. It is not necessary for you to wear that collar."

"Well," said Gov. Briggs, "I will never wear a collar again if you won't drink."

"Agreed," said the inebriate.

Gov. Briggs never wore a collar. They both kept their bargain for 20 years. They kept it to the death. That is the reason Gov. Briggs did not wear a collar.

Massachusetts never had a governor, and she has had a long and illustrious list, whose memory is more revered than that of Governor Briggs.

IT COMPLETELY CURED

J. F. NEWTON, 513 Broadway, Camden, N. J. Who says: "I was so severely afflicted with rheumatism that I had to carry my arm in a sling. My hands were swollen, my fingers stiff and the pain so intense that for seventeen nights I was unable to sleep. Doctors did me no good. I tried everything; nothing helped me. A friend suggested the Russian Rheumatism Cure. I tried it. Inside of one week I had full use of arm and hand, and have been well ever since."

It has cured every one afflicted with rheumatism who has given it a fair trial.

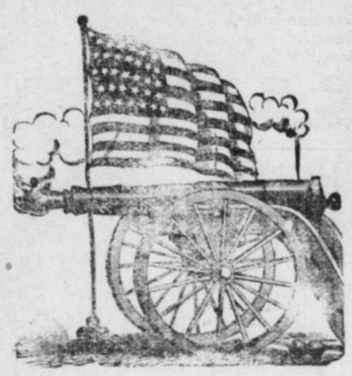
FIRE! FIRE! FIRE!



THE ENTIRE WOODS IS ON FIRE WITH REPUBLICAN VICTORY.

GEN. BEAVER WEARS THE PLUMES OF VICTORY.

The Great Protection Party Achieves a Triumph.

The Terms of the Submission Plank will be Faithfully Carried Out.

Beaver's Majority in the State More than 45,000.

Ohio and Massachusetts follow the Keyston

PHILADELPHIA, November 3.—2 a. m.—Only thirty-eight out of the sixty-seven counties in the state have been heard from. These show a net gain for Beaver, republican, of 57,253. This wipes out Pattison's plurality of 1882 and gives Beaver a plurality in the state of 17,851. The counties yet to be heard from will increase this largely. Beaver's plurality will reach close upon 40 000.

PITTSBURG, November 2.—Midnight—The entire republican state and county ticket is elected in Allegheny county, with the exception of judge, which is still in doubt, by about 7,000 majority. The republicans elect their congressmen, Judge Dalzell and Thomas M. Bayne in the Twenty-second and Twenty third districts. The legislature from this county will probably stand: Assembly 12 republicans and 2 democrats; senate, three republicans and one democrat.

Washington county—Returns on the state ticket are very meagre, but indicate a majority of 500 for Beaver.

Butler county—Roberts, republican, for congress, about 100 plurality, and Showalter, republican, and Thompson, republican probably elected representatives by small pluralities.

Wayne county—Black's plurality is less than 100, a republican gain of 1,300. Returns slow in coming in.

Pike county—Black 600 plurality, a republican gain of 232 Ricketts, Brennen, Africa and Stevenson 600 plurality each. For congress Buckalew, democrat, 600 plurality in county. For state senator, Joseph H Schub, democrat 600 plurality. In the county for representative, Milton D. Mott, democrat is elected.

Beaver county—500 plurality, a republican gain of 546.

Montgomery county—Beaver 350 plurality, a republican gain of 1,640. Davies, Norris, Stewart, 350 each. Osborne 300 for congress. Yardley, republican, 350 plurality. In county for state senator Brown, republican, 350 plurality. Five republican representatives are elected, as follows: John M. Cunningham. J. Shoemaker, Samuel Fast, Austin T. Taggen and William J. Heibner.

Tioga county—Beaver 2,700 plurality, a republican gain of 2,913 Davies, 2 700; Stewart, Osborne, 2,700 each. McCormick, republican, for congress, 2,800 in the county. Parker, republican, and Fosterhof for assembly

Delaware county—Estimated for Beaver by 2,500 plurality, a republican gain of 1,742.

Lancaster county—Estimated for Beaver by 8 000 plurality, a republican gain of 4,377.

Montgomery county—Estimated for Beaver by 450 plurality, a republican gain of 1,710.

Northumberland county—Black 700 plurality, a republican gain of 478. Ricketts 700 plurality, Brennen 700 plurality. McDivitt for congress 1,000 in the county, William A. Dean, democrat, and H. T. Eckert, democrat, are elected representatives.

Huntingdon county—Beaver's majority in the county is about 700, a republican gain of 842. For congress, Atkinson, republican, 900. Two republican assemblymen are elected. Sheriff and associate judge close.

Bradford county—Reports very meage. County republican by 3,000 a republican gain of 2,119.

Wyoming county—Black 90 plurality a republican gain of 396. Ricketts 200, Africa 90, Brennen 90, Stevenson 90 For congress, Bunnell, republican, 500. Representatives very close.

Lehigh county—Black 1 850 plurality, a republican gain of 252; Ricketts 1 850 plurality, Brennen 1,850 plurality, Africa and Stevenson each 1,850 plurality. Sowden democrat, for congress—no opposition—9,000 majority. Henninger, democrat, for state senator, 2,100 plurality. For assembly—both democrats—1,900 plurality. Roper, democrat, 1,700 plurality, Crilly, democrat, 1 50 plurality.

READING, November 2.—Complete vote in this city, Black 4 537, Beaver 4 240. The republicans probably elect their two members of the legislature, Smith and Douglass, from this city, by narrow majorities. Prohibition vote in Berks county 350.

Susquehanna county—Will give republican majority of 1,200 on state ticket, a republican gain of 1,534. No scratching on county ticket Bunnel, republican, for congress, 11,200. Lewis, republican, for state senate, 268. True and Moxey, republicans, for representatives, 1,200.

York county—Black's plurality 2,500, a republican gain of 1,790. The election of democratic state senator doubtful.

Patton Probably Elected.

Special to the Altoona Tribune.

CURWENSVILLE, PA., November 2.—The indications are that Patton, republican, will carry Clearfield, Centre, Clinton, Union and Mifflin counties and will be elected to congress from the Twentieth district.

Massachusetts.

BOSTON, November 2.—Seventy-six towns in this state including the city of New Bedford foot up as follows: For governor, Ames 15,948, Andrews 12,776, Lathrop, prohibitionist, 1,320 Andrews will have a majority of nearly ten thousand in Boston.

Patton may Carry Clinton

Special to the Altoona Tribune.

LOCK HAVEN, November 2.—As far as heard from Clinton county will give a reduced democratic majority for the state ticket. The indications are that Patton has carried the county for congress.

Hall Small Majority in Clearfield.

Special to the Altoona Tribune.

CLEARFIELD, PA., November 2.—One third of the district arein. The republican concedes the county to Black and Hall by majorities of 1,500 and 200 respectively.

New York

NEW YORK, November 2.—The city completed, with the exception of one election district, shows Roosevelt 60,392, Hewitt 90,296, George 67,699. Wardwell 5, 740.

Beaver and Tate Carry Bedford.

Special to the Altoona Tribune.

BEDFORD, November 2. Beaver has carried Bedford county by over 100; Tate's majorito about 3,000

Ohio.

CINCINNATI, November 2.—Forty-seven precincts in Ohio show a net republican gain of 1,584. The prohibition vote 154.

Shot for Revenge.

NEW YORK, November 1.—Surveyor of the Port of New York Beattie was shot about noon to-day, in his office at the custom house, by Louis Bieral, a discharged inspector, who fired five or six shots. The shooting caused intense excitement, not only around the custom house, but in the entire business portion of the city. The inspector who fired the shots was discharged last week and it is supposed that his motive was revenge. Mr. Beattie was wounded in two places, one of the bullets entering the groin. He was made as comfortable as possible in his room at the custom house, and after receiving medical attendance it was announced that his condition is not serious.

The surveyor's would-be assassin is Louis Bieral, a man who gained some distinction in the war of the rebellion. He was for about a dozen years attached to the custom house. About a week ago the surveyer dismissed him from the service, it being proven that he was in the habit of exacting money from the poor emigrants, at Castle Garden, where he was stationed. The specific charge on which he was removed was compelling an emigrant to pay $2 duty on a sewing machine. He came to the office about noon to-day and gained entrance to the surveyor's private office in the back of the building fronting on South William street. At 12 20 o'clock the reports of the pistol shots were heard by Private Secretary Louis Nichols, and Examiner Thomas Hyatt.

The discharged inspector rushed instantly out of the private office, pistol in hand, and ran through the corridor to the exit into Hanover street. A man attempted to stop him and he yelled: "If you touch me I'll kill you" The man stepped back and Bieral ran along to Beaver street, into which he turned and ran to the Cotton Exchange. A number of citizens followed him. Finding escape impossible, the man turned and ran into the arms of a policeman. He was trembling with fear and seemed to anticipate that his pursuers would harm him. He said to the policeman: "For God's sake arrest me." He was taken to the Old Slip station house and locked up. He described himself as being 72 years old, married, and living at No. 859 Sixth avenue.

The Duty on Iron Ore.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 30.—Assistant Secretary Fairchild yesterday decided that in assessing duty upon iron ore, the weight of the imported ore, after being dried at a temperature of 212° Fahrenheit, shall be accepted. Under an opinion of the Attorney-General the basis of duty is to be accepted in whatever is known to commerce as iron ore, and after a careful investigation the department finds according to the weight of evidence that the iron ore of commerce is ore from which moisture had been removed by drying at the temperature of 212°. Collectors of customs have been instructed that entries of prior importation may be reliquidated and duties refunded, in accordance with the above decision, where the importers have complied with the requirements as to protest, appeal and suit.

Briefs.

BRADDOCK, Pa., Oct. 31.—Mr. Jacob Girne, of Hyndman, Bedford county, employed by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company at Glenwood, jumped from the Baltimore express on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, at the Sixth street crossing here on Saturday night, at 9.40, and was run over by the cars. Both legs were cut completely off. He was also badly cut about the head. He is married and has five children in Hyndman.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 31.—The men who went on a strike at Bailey's iron works on the 24th of August will return to-morrow morning, a compromise having been effected. The men had demanded $4 per ton and will resume work at $3.85. Work will not be resumed in the Central iron works until about Wednesday on account of necessary repairs to the mill. The resumption of work at these mills will give employment to nearly 300 men.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers yesterday discussed the report of the insurance committee. Several clauses were adopted. The $3,000 life and accident policies were divided into two policies of 1,500 each, the assessments to be 50 cents for each death on a policy of $1,500. Another clause limits the age in taking risks to 45 years, and only to members The change will go into effect May 1, 1887.

NEW YORK, Octobe 31.—At democratic state headquarters to-night Chairman Poucher said he had received $500 from President Cleveland for the campaign fund and a like sum from Governor Hill.

PITTSBURGH, October 31.—Two unknown Italians who were walking on the track were struck by a freigh train near Pine Creek on the West Pennsylvania railroad to-night and instantly killed.

PITTSBURG, November 1.—The state supreme court to-day affirmed the decision of the lower court in the case of the twenty-four coal miners, convicted of conspiracy for being connected with the great coal strike of the Monongahela valley last year. The miners were sentenced to nine months' imprisonment in the Allegheny county workhouse and released on bail pending the discussion of the supreme court.

PHILADELPHIA, November 1.—The directors of the Pennsylvania railroad company held a special meeting to-day and declared a semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent, upon the capital stock of the company, out of the profits and payable in cash

SHAMOKIN, Pa., November 1.—Striking miners held a mass meeting this evening and decided to resume work. The officials of the coal company have promised an advance if they find, upon an examination of their books, that their business will warrant it.

WASHINGTON, November 1.—The public debt statement issued to-day shows a reduction in the public debt during October to be $13,201,619 50.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—The proximity of the elections is not visible in any marked stir among the office-holders and clerks hurrying to get home to vote. Formerly state political organizations long ere this were active in making arrangements for the transportation of political voters. The President's orders have put a stop to all publicity in that direction. But quite a number of the unterrified have been dropping out on their vacations about this time.

Seven Villages Destroyed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., October 31.—Intelligence has been received at Auckland, New Zealand, that on September 30 seven native villages were destroyed by volcanic eruption on the Island Niafu, in the Tonga group of Friendly Islands, a whole island has been devastated by volcanic deposits. The volcano on White Island, in Bay Plenty, is in a state of active eruption. A vast column of smoke is ascending from the island to a height of a thousand feet.

Four Fires.

CHICAGO, October 31.—A conflagration causing the loss of nearly a quarter of a million dollars and probably several lives, occurred in Knight & Leonard's six-story building, East Madison street, this afternoon. Six men of the insurance patrol were at work when the roof and the top floor fell, burying them in the ruins. The cries of the imprisoned men could be heard above all the din and the firemen immediately commenced work to rescue. George Furneld was the first brought out, only slightly injured. The rescuing party found Captain Heime pinned down under a fallen beam and wedged in between two boxes of goods. He was carried out with both legs crushed and the left foot turned completely around. P. Mullen was dragged out from under two heavy beams. He was cut about the head and his body was fearfully bruised. Gus Rourgemenke was being held down by heavy pieces of printing machinery, so that all efforts to release him seemed useless. The imprisoned man clutched convulsively at the iron bars and wheels begging his comrades to kill him, as they could not get him out. He was finally rescued. One leg is broken and an arm shattered, but it is believed he will live. Some hours later the dead body of C. Popevian was found in the ruins. In recovering the corpse of Michael McGovern was fatally injured by a piece of iron becoming dislodged by telegraph repairmen and falling striking him on the head and William Cornece was seriously injured by falling through a hole. Both were firemen.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 31.—The fire at the Standard mines near Mt. Pleasant, which originated yesterday forenoon, is still raging and is hourly gaining headway, and the flames and smoke, driven by a strong current of air, leaps from the mouth of the shaft to a height of a hundred feet above the ground. All efforts to check the fire have been of no avail. A fire engine from Pittsburg arrived to-night and the work of flooding the mine will be begun at once. This will require several months. It is thought that nearly three acres of coal are now ablaze. The amount of loss can not be estimated, for the entire plant will have to suspend operations for several months, thus throwing 600 men out of employment. The daily output of the shaft was 1,500 tons and in consequence of its being idle it will result in the closing down of 500 coke ovens, or one-twentieth of the whole in the Connellsville region.

TITUSVILLE, Pa., October 31—The Titusville Chemical works was damaged by fire to-night to the extent of twenty or thirty thousand dollars. The works will be rebuilt.

PITTSBURG, October 31.—Fire this morning damaged Marshall's foundry and construction works to the extent of $25,000. Fully covered by insurance.

Verdict Set Aside.

WASHINGTON, October 29.—The proceedings of the court martial, convened in this city for the trial of Captain William S. Johnson, United States army, retired, have been made public. Captain Johnson was tried on charges of duplicating his pay accounts, and the court martial returned a verdict of not guilty. Lieutenant General Sheridan, who reviewed the proceedings, set aside this verdict, however. In his endorsement he says that the court should have admitted evidence touching the character of the accused. The lieutenant general further says:

"That the accused admitted the execution of two sets of vouchers for his pay for the same month, is shown by the record; and the evidence also shows that he allowed these vouchers to pass beyond his control, so that both were presented and paid While it appears that the accused made certain private arrangements with the persons holding his vouchers, yet the United States was no party thereto and was in no manner bound by them; and, although there may have been extenuating circumstances and the overdrawn pay was refunded, it nevertheless remains that the government was exposed to a fraud for which Captain Johnson cannot be held excusable. The proceedings finding an acquittal in the case of Captain William S. Johnson, United States army, retired, are disapproved.

The release of the accused from arrest has been ordered and the court-martial dissolved. This action of the lieutenant-general in disapproving the findings of the court acquitting the accused, is said to be almost without precedent in the administration of military justice, although there can be no doubts as to its legality. The accused stands almost in the same position he occupied before trial, although he cannot be again tried for the same offense.

Twenty-six Victims.

MILWAUKEE, Oct 29.—The city is still greatly excited over the accident at Rio, on the St. Paul railroad. At least 26 lives are now supposed to have been lost. A large force of men is engaged in raking the ashes of the burned coach. The road has been cleared and trains are running on time. Conductor Hankey, of the freight train, who fled into the woods immediately after the catastrophe occurred, has been found wandering around in a raving condition. He is likely to become a hopeless maniac. Conductor Searle has much improved and he will probably recover.

The lives of the passengers on the sleepers are now said to have been saved by the heroism of Engineer Little, who held his hand on the throttle of the engine while in the face of seeming death. The Franciscan Sisters who lost their lives by the wreck were Sister Alphonse and Sister Dimsea. They were accompanied by a candidate from the mother house at New Cassel, Wis. The two sisters had been to Chicago and were on their way to the Winona institute with the candidate from New Cassel, who joined them here. All three perished.

Earthquake Shocks.

CHARLETTON, S. C., October 31—A slight tremor was felt here this afternoon but caused no damage and excited no alarm. Shortly after the shock a spring of clear and pure water appeared in the custom house yard and is still running at the rate of a gallon per minute. The water is said to have been hot when the flow began.

COLUMBIA, S. C., October 31.—Another earthquake shocks was felt here to day. It was very perceptible but of short duration.

Killed in a Saloon.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 29.—Edward Blake, a saloon keeper in East St. Louis, to-day shot and killed William C. Vanderough, an engineer on the Indianapolis and St. Louis railroad Vanderough was passing the noon hour in Blake's saloon and had been drinking a good deal, when a quarrel between the proprietor and Vanderough arose over the payment for drinks.

Big Fire at Rockford, Ill.

ROCKFORD, Ill., November 1.—A disastrous conflagration visited the city this afternoon and for a time the destruction was very great and the business portion was threatened. The fire broke in Johnson's oat meal mill building and rapidly spread to adjoining buildings, the flames being fanned by a fierce wind which was blowing. After two hours of hard work the flames were brought under control. The buildings destroyed are M. Johnson, oatmeal mill; Bartlett & Co., flour and commission warehouse; A. L. Bartlett's mill and grain warehouse; N. C. Thompson, manufacturing company, with warehouse and residence of Mrs. P. Doyle and William Haley. It is estimated that the loss will reach fully $100,000, with insurance amounting to about half that sum.

Shaken by Earthquake Shocks.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 1.—A letter published in this evening's Bulletin under date of October 15 from Apea says that authentic news has reached Samoa to the effect that on the morning of September 10 over 100 heavy shocks of earthquakes occurred on the Island Nineafor one of the Tonga group and that from the bottom of a lake which is 2,000 feet deep a mountain has risen to the height of three hundred feet above its surface. Also, that this mountain has burst out into flames and thrown out hot stones and sand in such quantities as to destroy two-thirds of the cocoanut trees on the Island. In Samoa, light shocks of earthquake occur so frequently now that they no longer cause any alarm.

Paid the Tax—New Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The law taxing oleomargarine went into operation today. Reports received by Commissioner Miller show that all classes of manufacturers and dealers, including retail men, propose to meet the tax and continue in business.

The postmaster general has appointed the following fourth-class Pennsylvania postmasters: H. C. McCoy, at Anandale; Frank Perston, Belfre; Miss Emma Shuster, Geary; C. F. Rhodes, Lake; Jacob Broadhead, Lloyd; L. J. Andrews, Minnequa; Alion Hartwell, Myersburg; J. M. Fry, Sedan; J. J. Day, Sparta; Millas Wilson, Union; John F. Flack, Woodale.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

When one has been suffering the agonies of a severe attack of rheumatism, neuralgia or sciatica, and relief comes, it seems as if a new lease of life had been granted. Such have been the feelings of thousands who, after trying physicians and numberless remedies, have used Athlophoros and found to their great joy that this medicine really did cure these diseases.

367 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

After suffering for nearly two years with a continuous attack of rheumatism; after trying almost every specific, domestic and foreign, which the credulity of a wise man, or a fool, might lead one to trust in, it was a double pleasure to me to find a remedy which, originating in the famous "City of Elms"—the home of my ancestors and its first founders—has proved so invaluable a blessing. It is nearly six months since I was led to trace out the significance of that word Athlophoros. It has proved to me, in a good degree, a renewer of my former vigor and strength, so that I have been enabled to move about with almost youthful activity, and to feel, while approaching my "three score years and ten," that I have a new hold on life. I believe your philosophy of the disease to be correct that it has its origin in the blood, and that your remedy touches those joints and muscles, loosening the nodes, which have been brought into subjection to this dreadful disease, and sets them free as no other remedy that I have tried. I have been cautious for so long a time in recommending it to others till I had tried its efficacy in my own case; and I am now free to state the estimate I put upon it, as the safest and most efficient cure I have any knowledge of.

A. B. DAVENPORT.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 9

SPECIAL MENTION.

Scavengers of Importance.

Next to the bowels, or rather in conjunction with them, the kidneys and bladder are the most important scavengers of the system. They purify the blood and carry off its waste, preventing rheumatism, dropsy, Bright's disease and diabetes by their active cleansing work. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, when the kidneys evince a tendency to relax the activity of their important function, renews it, and thus averts renal maladies, the most difficult to cope with, and which superinduce a frightful loss of bodily tissue, stamina and flesh. When the renal organs exhibit the slightest symptoms of inaction, they should at once receive the needful stimulus from this safest, surest and pleasantest of diuretics. Chills and fever, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint and debility are also remedied by it.

The Need of Moral Training in the Schools.

In the course of editorial comments in the Philadelphia Times, on "One-Sided, Education," the following statistics are given and conclusions drawn which we think show a decided need for moral training in the schools. The Times says:

The State of Massachusetts, which stands in the first rank among the States of the Union in the diffusion of education and which is the only State in which accurate statistics are collected, furnishes a case in point. Beginning with 1850, when the population of the State was 994,514, the number of persons in prison was 1,236, or one to 804 of the population. Thirty years later, in 1880, the population had increased to 1,783,085 and the prisoners to 3,659, or one in 487. In other words, the prison population, in proportion to the entire population, had nearly doubled in thirty years. The increase might very naturally be attributed to the great influx of foreigners which took place during the period mentioned. But here again the figures show that the increase in native born criminals was proportionately greater than that of foreign born. In 1850 the native population was 827,430, and the native prisoners 653, or 1 in 1,267 of those born in the country. In 1880 the native population numbered 1,339,594 and the native criminals 2,175, or 1 in 615. By these figures it is seen that in spite of schools, colleges and churches the native criminal population of Massachusetts, in proportion to the entire native population of the State, has more than doubled within thirty years.

Something must be allowed in searching for the causes of this increase in crime for the overcrowding incident to large towns and densely populated manufacturing centres. But 1879, the year covered by the census figures of 1880, was not an unprosperous business year. In point of fact it was above the average in business prosperity, and it is quite probable that almost any year since that time would have made a worse showing in this respect. The great bulk of the increase in crime must therefore be sought for elsewhere It is not possible that it is to be found in the fact that the education provided of the schools is chiefly intellectual and that moral and industrial teaching are practically ignored? Everyone is cognizant of the fact that the graduates from the schools and colleges crowd the professions and the so-called genteel occupations, and those who fail to find occupation there are unprepared to enter any gainful trade or calling requiring skill or training. In other words, the schools with their defective or one-sided training, increase the number of genteel do-nothings, who have to get a living somehow, and some of whom doubtless take to dishonest practices. In the effort to make the schools unsectarian the moral training of the youth has been completely abandoned, doubtless to the very serious deterioration of public morals. The strict Puritan morality of a century ago, which was taught both in the family and at school, has disa peared from the curriculum of the Massachusetts schools, and it must be admitted that the results, as shown by the criminal statistics, are far from encouraging.

Problem of the Apples.

A Chicago man is bothered by the following problem, and is anxious to learn how he can apply it to his own business: "There were three boys engaged in selling apples. Two of them had 30 apples each, and the third had 60 apples, or exactly as many as the other two put together. The first boy sold his apples at two for one cent, and thereiore took in 15 cents. The second sold his apples at three for one cent, and therefore took in 10 cents. The two together took in 25 cents. But the third boy sold his 60 apples at five for two cents, and therefore only took in 24 cents. To sell five apples for two cents ought to bring in as much as to sell two of them for one cent and the other three for another cent; but it seems that it does not if different people own the two apples and the three." This has the air of interesting extemporaneity that a Chicago assault on the exact science ought to have. Selling two apples for a cent 15 times and three apples for a cent 10 times doesn't make 5 apples for a cent 12 times, according to precise Eastern ideas.—N. Y. Sun.

Winter is Coming.

A walk or drive into the country will soon convince one that cold weather will soon be here, for on every side the gorgeous beauty of autumn; with various colored leaves, the corn standing in shocks, the southern flight of migratory birds, the yellow pumpkin whitened with frost and dew, bids us say farewell to summer, and prepare for the cold winter blasts to come. Straw hats have given way to a warmer headgear, the linen duster has been called in, and the warmer overcoat has been taken from the camphor box, and donned once more. The man who is subject to throat troubles will now permit his bread to grow. The coal dealer smiles serenely at you as he passes by, and the tailor eyes you as if taking a mental measurement of you for your winter suit.—Exchange.

General Master Workman Powderly says: "I am a Protectionist from the sole of my foot to the top of my head I believe not alone in 10 per cent but in 20 per cent. and as much more as the exigencies of home interests require. I believe in a tariff upon everything—raw material included; and raw material is that covered up in mother earth, and from the time it is brought out with a pick until it is made into a knife it needs protection, because it is all labor."

Las Vegas.

Las Vegas is a station on the main line of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fee railroad to El Paso, just 770 miles from Kansas City. But when you get to Las Vegas you are not at the Hot Springs. They are located six miles off the main line and are reached by a branch of the Atchison road, built expressly to convey thither all who desire to see or taste them.

The springs are situated on the banks of Rio Gallinas, This is a most picturesque stream. It has its sources away up among the clouds in the Spanish range of the Rocky mountains. With its course diversified by many foaming rapids, and with every possible phase of the wildest and grandest mountain scenery all along its banks, it flows down through a rugged, weird looking canon of great depth, to one of the loveliest plateaus that mortal eye ever gazed upon.

This beautiful floral table, for it is no exaggeration to bestow upon it that title, comprises an area of 30 acres. It has an elevation of 6,767 feet above the level of the sea. Perpetual summer reigns there. The thermometer is seldom known to go above 85 degrees nor below 60. The rarified air that the lungs draw in at every breath is as invigorating and exhilerating as a draught of iced champagne. Every night all the year round, you can sleep under blankets, and every day you can sleep under blankets, and every day you can walk out in full glare of the sunshine without fear of thermic fever or perspiration.

Serious Thoughts.

He is a strong man who can hold down his opinion.

Approbation before death is more important than probation afterward.

In the United States there is one minister to 700 people; in India, one missionary to 435,000.

Tobacco must go—out of the ministry. A Lutheran Synod adds its influence against it.

The experiment of having saving banks in connection with Sunday-schools has proved most successful in Germany. One school in Berlin has 710 depositors. When a child has saved ten marks the amount is entered in its name in the State savings bank.

It sounds inconsistent to hear an ordinary congregation singing, "Jesus, I my cross have taken, all to leave and follow Thee." Think of a woman with a silk gown on and a stuffed bird in her hat standing up and singing: "Naked, poor, despised, forsaken, Thou from hence my all shall be."

Chautauqua circles are being organized all over Nebraska.

Two Ways of Opening Oysters.

Rarebits,

"Talk of opening oysters," said Old Hurricane, "why, nothing's easier, if you only know how."

"And how's how?" inquired Starlight.

"Scotch snuff," said Old Hurricane, very sententiously. "Scotch snuff. Bring a little of it near their noses and they'll sneeze their lids off."

"I know a genius," observed Meister Karl, "who has a better plan. He spreads the bivalves in a circle, seats himself in the centre and begins spinning a yarn. Sometimes it is an adventure—sometimes a legend of his loves. As he proceeds the 'natives' get interested—one by one they gape with astonishment at the tremendous and direful whoppers which are poured out, and as they gape my friend whips 'em out, peppers 'em and swallows 'em."

"That'll do," said Starlight, with a long sigh. "I wish we had a bushel of the bivalves here; they'd open easy if they only hear you."

A recent burial at sea of a passenger on one of the transatlantic steamships has caused many letters of protest against what is termed "an old and barbarous custom." The practice seems wholly unnecessary at the present day, when there are so many means at hand for keeping a dead body until a vessel reaches port. Sewing a body up in canvas, fastening heavy weights to it to cause it to sink, and throw it overboard a few hours after the last breath is drawn, are excusable only in case of absolute necessity. Many invalids are deterred from making a sea voyage for the benefit of their health on account of the dread of an ocean burial should they die on the passage. A person engaging and paying for his passage is really entitled to delivery at the place of destination dead or alive. Every ocean steamship could carry a few metalic burial cases for use in case of deaths on board.

Watterson on Napoleon Bonaparte.

Correspondence Louisville Courier-Journal.

To my mind Napoleon Bonaparte exists as a type of all that is wicked and monstrous in human nature and destiny; an arch-fiend, with a frienzied gift of military ambition and genius, and in no sense worthy of such a temple. I could find, indeed, no adequate reason for its being, except that it stands not alone as a monument to a famous warrior, but also as a symbol of natural pride and glory. Illogical as it may be, and unchristian, yet as long as might can force its way against right, I suppose men and women will continue to fall down and worship mere prowess.

Bonaparte was not a statesman and he was not a patriot. He was not even a Frenchman. He was a vulgar foreign adventurer.

Accomplished Children.

The desire to make a display of the real or fancied accomplishments of their little ones is often irresistible in proud parents. But parents differ in their opinions as to what accomplishments are, as the following incident shows.

"I want Lillian to be highly accomplished," said a frivolous mother, "fit to shine in any society, and specially accomplished in singing. Lillian, sing 'Gathering up the Shells from the Shore,' dear."

"I do not wish my daughter Mary Ann to have accomplishments," said a grim caller, who was a female doctor. "I want her to be thoroughly versed in modern science. She is only seven years old, but she is well along in physiology Mary Ann, say your bones."

Boston.

Boston Record,

If one hasn't ancestors, it is just as well to have the courage of one's lack of them.

A young girl who came to Boston from Chicago lately was shown by a Yankee girl of excellent family some ancestral china.

"These dishes," said the New England girl, "have been in our family during seven generations."

"Seven generations!" exclaimed the Chicago girl. "Well," and she shrugged her shoulders. "I don't know whether I ever had a great grandfather or not; but I do know that, if I did have one, he didn't use dishes!"

She Knew It.

"There!" exclaimed young Spriggins, suddenly, as they were all sitting on the piazza. "I must go and get shaved. My face is as rough as a cow's tongue. I tell you it feels uncomfortable to have these little short bristly hairs all over a fellow's chin."

Miss De Puyster always gushes when young Spriggins says anything. "I know it," said she now effusively.

And then everybody leaned forward and asked her all at once how she knew it, but Miss De Puyster only blushed painfully and said they were horrid things.—Somerville Journal.

"Gracious! here comes that Miss Flygh who eloped with old Smith some time ago," said Mrs Brown, nudging her husband. "I have heard so much about her that I want to get a good look at her face, but I don't want to appear rude by staring directly at her." "As you have your new bonnet on, my dear," returned Brown, "all you need do is to turn around as soon as she has passed and you will be sure to get a good view of her face."

A man entered a Little Rock bank and presented a check which read, "Pay to bearer the sum of ten dollars." The cashier took the check, looked at it and said, "The check is perfectly good, but you'll have to get some one to identify you." "What is the use?" the man replied; "don't you see that it says 'pay to bearer?'" 'Yes, but you must prove that you are the bearer."

Medical.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is a peculiar medicine, and is carefully prepared by competent pharmacists. The combination and proportion of Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Yellow Dock, and other remedial agents is exclusively peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, giving it strength and curative power superior to other preparations. A trial will convince you of its great medicinal value. Hood's Sarsaparilla

Purifies the Blood

creates and sharpens the appetite, stimulates the digestion, and gives strength to every organ of the body. It cures the most severe cases of Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Boils, Pimples, and all other affections caused by impure blood, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Headache, Kidney and Liver Complaints, Catarrh, Rheumatism, and that extreme tired feeling.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla has helped me more for catarrh and impure blood than anything else I ever used." A. Ball, Syracuse, N. Y.

Creates an Appetite

"I used Hood's Sarsaparilla to cleanse my blood and tone up my system. It gave me a good appetite and seemed to build me over." E. M. Hale, Lima, Ohio.

"I took Hood's Sarsaparilla for cancerous humor, and it began to act unlike anything else. It cured the humor, and seemed to tone up the whole body and give me new life." J. F. Nixon, Cambridgeport, Mass. Send for book giving statements of cures.

James Russell Lowell and Mr. Hawthorne (the latter gentleman being a representative of the New York World) are at sword's points. Mr. Lowell communicated some of his individual opinions about England and her principal people to Mr. Hawthorne, and the latter gave them to the readers of the World as an interview. Now Mr. Lowell says that he did not know Mr. Hawthorn was acting in the capacity of an interviewer and took advantage of what he thought was merely a social chat. The World states, however, that Mr. Lowell knew all about it. Permit us to remark that Mr. Lowell seems to be singularly unfortunate in his experience with newspaper men. There is a class of gentlemen who really want to air their opinions in the paper, but pretend that they do not want to do so. Is Mr. Lowell one of that rather hypocritical class?

A Mexican Movement.

NOGALES, A. T., October 27.—The proposal of prominent Mexicans to establish a Dictatorship to replace the Presidency of Mexico, is causing a great deal of comment along the border. The Mexican papers, with few exceptions, have lately espoused the scheme and urge its adoption, but the tone of the opposition journals is extremely bitter. One of the latter, El Monitor Franterisco says:

"General Diaz prepares the road to the Dictatorship; Voz de Mexico has entered the arena and proclaims it. Congress is called on to sanction the will of the Cæsar of the Continent. Senor Romera Rubio works silently to realize this new plan. Not being able to bring to success his project to prolong the Presidential term, he took up the Dictatorship, and so it happens that this project is fathered by a pillar of the Conservative party, and the people seem to be indifferent to these attemps. Meanwile the gubernatorial press clamors for a Dictatorship for General Diaz for twenty years. Why not hereditary? * * * When nations do not possess the necessary manhood to be free, nothin is more evident than that despots will take advantage of their indolence and erect thrones and assume the sceptor. It is nine years now since the men of Gurteher (Diaz's party) climbed step by step the ladder which leads to despotism, and once they have defied public ire. Already they ignore the fundamental laws, and all that is wanted is the reign of a sole will. The life of a slave is sorrowful, and we need to redeem it as men of action, men whose hearts belong to the country, not to the horde of speculators. If such men have disappeared, we bow respectfully to the ruins of the Republic, and exclaim: 'Long live Porfirio!'"

La Voz de Mexico strongly urges in its latest edition, that General Diaz be made Dictator, and the organ of Monte Alegre demands that the General's term be made twenty years, and that the office be made hereditary.

Blaine's Reception at Pottsville.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., October 27.—The same tune, "Hail to the Chief," the same old cheers and large crowds then at most of former stopping places, welcomed Blaine to Shamokin. He spoke from the balcony of a hotel to over 5,000 people, presided over by Fulton the coal operator. The tour for to-day was concluded at Pottsville this evening with the grandest ovation he has yet received in this state. The train ran into the depot at just 9 o'clock, having passed several towns on the road where illuminations has been pre-arranged.

The ten blocks along Centre street to the court house was a milky way on earth. Every man, woman and child along the route seemed to have Roman candles and other fireworks, making and blazing fire apparatus for both hands and they stood out on roofs and pavements in the rain under gossamers and umbrellas working industriously with both while the carriages were going and coming from the meeting. At the court house the crowd overpowered the police at the private entrance, and then the doors were shut, leaving half the Blaine party outside. Of 10,000 people who participated in the demonstration, only about 1,500 were able to get into the court house.

A $200,000 Fire

CLEVELAND, October 27.—The magnificent stone building of the Cass school of Applied Science at the East End, which was completed and opened about one year ago at a cost of $200,000, was destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning. The discovery of the fire shortly after 2 o'clock was followed by an explosion in the chemical laboratory, which blew out a portion of one of the walls. The flames soon made short work of the fine structure. The building was four stories in height, and built of sandstone. It was furnished nished with all the latest appliances for the demonstration of the science. The total loss is estimated at $200,000. The physiological and chemical apparatus and the geological collection were among the finest in the country. The chemical appliances were valued at $20,000. The geological collection was very fine. It is thought that the building and its contents were insured for about $75,000. There were from 50 to 60 students in the school. The school was built with money left by the late Leonard Case, the Cleveland millionaire philanthropist.

The Bulgarian Crisis.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 27.—The Official Messenger to-day says: The anarchy which prevails in Bulgaria prevents the Russian consuls from protecting the lawful interests of Russian residents. After General Kaulbars had left Varna several Russians were arrested on illegal pretexts. Two Russian cruisers were therefore dispatched to that place.

PESTH, October 27.—The Nemzet, a semi-official organ, dwells upon the advantages that would accrue to Italy by a close alliance with Austria Hungary on the Balkan question. Other papers comment upon the isolation of England, and suggest the advisability of an alliance between Austria-Hungary, Italy and England.

LONDON, October 27.—The Standard, referring to the Bulgarian crisis, believes that Prince Bismarck has been sounded on the subject, and that he said in the event of Russia refusing to nominate or accept a candidate for the throne of Bulgaria, which cannot remain vacant an indefinite period, she will not be justified in further opposing the return of Prince Alexander.

The Episcopal Convention.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church resumed its sessions at the Central Music hall this forenoon. A message was received from the house of bishops, declaring that in the judgment of the bishops the use of the unfermented juice grape in the sacrament is not warranted by the example of our Lord and was an unauthorized departure from the practice of the Catholic church, and that the mixing of water with the use of wine was not objectionable provided it be not done ritualistically until authorized by a change of the rubrics. The message did not require any action by the deputies.

A resolution was adopted to appoint a committee to present a plan of making notification to the dioceses of the changes adopted in the prayer book.

A resolution was adopted providing for a joint committee of three clericals, three bishops and three laymen to whom should be recommitted the whole subject of marriage and divorce, to report thereon to the next general convention on the second day thereof. The house then resumed its consideration of the proposed amendment to the book of common prayer.

A Fatal Accident.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. October 28.—The limited passenger train on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, which left here last night at 10 o'clock, was derailed at Rio, when about three hours out, and thrown into an old stone quarry. Particulars were hard to get this morning, but it was admitted at the general office of the company in this city that one coach and three sleepers were wrecked and five or six persons killed. Physicians left this city on an early train for the scene of the disaster. At 9 30 it was reported that out of ten persons who occupied the passenger coach, seven were killed. A gentleman from Chicago and two children from Winona, Minn., were the only ones saved from the passenger coach. None of the occupants of the sleepers were injured. Nothing has yet been learned in regard to the number of wounded.

Assistant General Manager Tucker, of the St. Paul Railway, this morning made the following statement: "Our Limited Express ran into an open switch fifteen miles this side of Portage, Wis., last night. The baggage and mail cars were demolished, and, so far as we know, five people were killed. We do not know who they were as yet. I do not think any more were killed. I don't know how many were injured or how badly. The demolished cars caught fire and were burned up. One sleeper was also destroyed by fire. We have sent out two special trains this morning, with physicians and help, and everything possible is being done. I don't know what the loss is. This is of no consequence; the loss of life is the trouble."

So far particulars are very meagre. There is no reason to believe the loss is greater, although the wildest stories are in circulation. It is said the most distressing and harrowing scenes took place after the wreck. The accident is the first one to the new Limited Express, which runs at a very high rate of speed.

LATER.—From the most reliable accounts obtainable to-night the number who perished does not exceed ten and these were all in the passenger coach next to the baggage car. A late dispatch estimates the number of persons burned at twenty-six. A force of men has been engaged to night in raking over the ruins of the coaches. At 11 o'clock the charred remains of eleven victims had been recovered.

Away Up North.

WASHINGTON, October 29.—The state department has received intelligence from the United States consul at Charlottetown of the arrival at that port on the 15th inst. of the Dominion steamship Alert. This vessel is to aid in opening winter communication between Prince Edward Island and the main land. Since her return from the Greely relief expedition, the Alert has been engaged in cruiser duty in Hudson bay, testing the navigability of those waters in connection with the project of connecting Winnipeg by railway with Fort Churchill, on the west coast of that bay. Mr. Frank Fitz-Payne, an observer who was at Cape Prince of Wales, on the south shore of Hudson's strait, from June, 1885, to September, 1886, reports that the solid ice came early in October from down Fox channel, blown by the prevailing north west winds, and the strait does not open until July.

Mr. Payne made full notes of the bora and fauna of the region. Lieutenant Gordon, in his report, says the walrus hunting and whale and porpoise fishing are capable of great extension and are profitable pursuits. At the present time there are only two American whalers known to frequent the bay. They make a rendezvous at Marble Island, near the northwest coast of the bay in latitude 63. At that point were found a number of graves of American seamen and many relics. There can be little navigation in the bay except in the months of Augus and September. A geological exploration of the northwest of the bay and an examination of the fishing grounds of the American whalemen have been proposed.

Liberty Unveiled.

NEW YORK, October 28.—One million people participated in the dedication of Bartholdi's statue of Liberty in New York to-day. President Cleveland was present and delivered an address. He entered a carriage at 10 o'clock and drove to the reviewing stand at Madison Square. He was followed by Secretaries Whitney, Vilas and Lamar and Colonel Lamont in to her carriages.

The naval parade consisted of two grand divisions, the first being composed of large steamers and the second of tugs and other small vessels. At 12.45 a signal was fired from the flag vessel, at which all the steamers headed down stream and took the positions assigned them in accordance with the orders issued yesterday.

At the moment of the unveiling of the statue a salute of one hundred guns was fired and the steamers in the bay blew their whistles, and the men-of-war returned the salute from their guns. At 4 o'clock the vessels which had taken part in the naval parade began to return and deposited their car goes of sightseers at the Battery and nearby wharves. At 4.20 the guns on Governor's Island were unmasked and belched forth their thunder for half an hour.

The Beauty's Husband Commits Suicide.

EASTON, Pa., October 28.—John Delanty, well known as a successful showman who was married some time ago to Louise Montague, Forepaugh's $10,000 beauty, committed suicide by placing his head on the rail of the Lehigh Valley Railroad near Flemington, N. J. His head was badly mashed and he died last night. Delanty had loaned O'Brien, the circus proprietor, a considerable sum of money, and he was anxious about getting it back again and became much worried and distressed. He ran away from his wife and was not heard of until he was found dying on the tracks. He has left, considerable property behind him.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetation remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after testing its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human sufferings, I will send free of charge, to all who desires it, this reciept, in German, French or English, with full direction for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block Rochester, N. Y. 18 11 1y

Peculiar "Canned Corn."

"See that man going into the bank there?" said a veracious citizen one day last week over on Dearborn street; "well he's rich and getting richer. He's got as nice a little business as there is in this town—one that makes handsome profits every day in the year.

"What business is he in?"

He cans corn for the Iowa market, and sells dead loads of it, too. This may surprise you that Chicago should sell corn to the great corn state of Iowa, but it's a fact. The corn is packed in Kentucky whisky, and the flavor of the liquor isn,t hurt a bit by the mixing. As to the corn I couldn't say whether it is imported or not"

MANHOOD

How Lost How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, IMPOTENCY, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also CONSUMPTION, EPILEPSY and FITS, induced by self-indulgence, or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in his admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

CONQUEST OF MEXICO

Prescott's HISTORY of the CONQUEST of MEXICO. With a Preliminary View of the Ancient Mexican Civilization, and the Life of the Conqueror, Hernando Cortés. Illustrated Library Edition, in two volumes, small octavo. Price, $2.25. Popular Edition, two volumes in one, without illustrations, $1.25. Now ready.

Copyright. The expiration of copyright enables me now to present this great work to American readers at a popular price, yet in form worthy of the author, and worthy of the finest library. Its mechanical qualities are fairly equal to those of my best edition of "Guizot's History of France."

Whipple, the noted essayist and critic, says: "A history possessing the unity, variety, and interest of a magnificent poem. It deals with a series of facts and exhibits a gallery of characters, which to have invented would place its creator by the side of Homer; and which to realize and represent in the mode Mr. Prescott has done, required a rare degree of historical imagination."

Beyond ALL PRAISE. "This announcement is all that is needed. The work itself long ago passed beyond all praise. The thousands of people who were unable to secure it at former prices will be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of doing so at a reduced rate."—Interior, Chicago, Ill.

"The work itself occupies too high a place among historical writings to need commendation."—The Mail, Toronto, Ontario.

Timely. "The enterprising Mr. Alden has chosen a most timely occasion for the reissue of this valuable work, and its excellent and convenient library form, its cheapness, and the widespread interest in Mexican matters that exists at present, will doubtless combine to give it an appreciative reception."—The Week, Toronto, Ontario.

"The volume before us is a very creditable piece of work mechanically, and puts Prescott's charming histories within the reach of the average pocket book."—Evangelist, St. Louis, Mo.

Fascinating. "This history has a fascinating interest, and is so well known as to need no praise."—Christian Secretary, Hartford, Conn.

"Especially interesting at this time. Is published in two handsome volumes, and like all Mr. Alden's publications is sold at an astonishingly low price."—Advert..., Detroit, Mich.

A Noble Work; judiciously planned and admirably executed; rich with the spoils of learning easily and gracefully worn; inspired everywhere with a conscientious love of the truth, and controlled by that unerring good sense without which genius leads astray with its false lights, and learning encumbers with its heavy panoply. It will win the literary voluptuary to its pages by the attractiveness of its subject and the flowing ease of its style; and the historical student will do honor to the extent and variety of the research which it displays. . . It will take its place among those enduring productions of the human mind which age cannot stale and custom cannot wither.—G.S. HILLARD.

FERDINAND AND ISABELLA. HISTORY of the REIGN of Ferdinand and Isabella, the Catholic. By WILLIAM H. PRESCOTT. Illustrated Library Edition, in two volumes, small octavo, including portraits and other illustrations. Fine heavy paper, fine cloth, gilt tops. Price, $2.25. Popular Edition, from the same plates, but without illustrations, the two volumes in one. Price, $1.25. Now ready.

"Prescott had the genius to invest the dry facts of history with the charms of fiction; and yet he never sacrifices truth to the graces of style."—WESTLAKE.

"It is one of the most pleasing as well as most valuable contributions that have been made to modern history; it is the only one that gives us a faithful and sufficient picture of a period so momentous as the latter half of the fifteenth century."—London Athenæum.

"One of the finest histories of modern times, written by an author of rare felicity of diction, fervor of imagination, accuracy of statement, and exquisite beauty of style. Every one who reads at all should read Prescott."—Presbyterian, Philadelphia, Pa.

—The inspection train of the Pennsylvania railroad traveled over the Tyrone division Friday and visited Bellefonte that morning. The company is composed of officers and division bosses of the road. They remained here only a few minutes and found everything in excellent condition.

—We often wonder how Joe Furey has managed to get along peacefully with the Lock Haven girls. They used to be the subject of many of his brightest items and never appeared to thorough advantage in comparison with their Bellefonte sisters. But we suppose that inasmuch as he has consented to live down there, even the ugliest among them has forgiven him and will smile at him occasionally.

Haney-Meyer.

Mr. Harry C. Haney, of Philipsburg, was married on Thursday evening to Miss Sadie, daughter of Thomas Meyer, of this place. The church was thronged with people. People were shown to seats as they entered by Messrs. William and Nathan Markle and Charles and Fred. Steck. The decorations of flowers and plants were elaborate and beautiful. Promptly at 7 o'clock the strains of the wedding march ushered in the wedding party who moved up the aisle, preceded by the ushers.

The marriage ceremony was brief, but very impressive. The bridal party moved out of the church through the aisle on the east side, they having entered by the west aisle. This enabled everybody to see them. Miss Meyer, now Mrs. Haney, was attired in a dark silk, very handsomely made. She wore an exquisite floral bouquet The groom wore a suit of black, which fit perfectly his manly figure.

After the ceremony the friends invited to the reception went to the residence of H. H. Benner on East High street, in front of which a row of Chinese lanterns turned night into day. Congratulations were profusely showered upon the happy couple, and a sumptuous banquet was partaken of. The presents were notable for their useful character and great value.

The happy couple remained in town several days longer and will defer their wedding tour until a more convenient time. The groom is the clerk in a large hardware store and cannot now spend much time away from home. The bride is a pretty and very amiable young lady. We wish both of them much happiness.

Bold Burglars.

The Coalport Standard of the 21st gives the following: An outrage was perpetrated on Tuesday night of last week, of which Richard Elder, residing at Ashland Furnace, Cambria county, was the victim. Mr. Elder had sold a property for a sum said to amount to $6,000 or $7,000. This sale took place but recently. He is about 80 years of age and resides with his wife and daughter in the house in which the robbery took place. On the night in question his house was entered by a gang of thieves said to number seven, and who were not masked. When they first entered, demanded the money which they supposed was hidden somewhere in the building, but on Mr. Elder refusing to give any information concerning it they threatened to tie him up and hang him. As Mr. Elder refused to tell anything concerning the whereabouts of the lucre, the fellows proceeded to bind him, and while his wife and daughter were guarded by some of the marauders, the others went through the house and made an effectual search for anything of value. They succeeded in unearthing $50 in money and some other valuables, after which they took their departure. So far as we have been able to learn there has been no trace of them discovered.

—The horse used by the hunting party on Tuesday, and which ran off and broke a leg, was shot next morning. Mr. Frank Grice of Brooklyn, N. Y., has the sympathy of his friends in this mishap. Just think how aggravating it is to come from the City of Churches to hunt and then meet with such a misfortune. But we are assured that throughout the occurrence he maintained imperturbable coolness, resembling an ice burg. The only panacea we can prescribe is to advise him to try it again.

"Clay" Writes of Corn Crops and Politics.

LOVEVILLE, Monday, Oct. 25.

Mrs. Yeager and her son Frank P. Yeager, spent Sunday in Loveville.

We recorded, two weeks ago, the illness of Mrs. John Wilson. At this date she is no better.

Mr. Isaac Beck husked a field of corn containing twelve acres which yielded 1500 bushels, or an average of 125 bushels to the acre. His brother, Isaiah, had a field containing nine acres which had 129 bushels to the acre.

We imagine that your worthy correspondent who gave a full account of the Beaver meeting at Loveville was considerably off when he wrote of it being held in the City Hall. But mistakes of this kind are overlooked, as he, like all the rest of us, was so greatly enthused that he shouted down his sleeve, "Hurrah for Beaver!"

Mr. G L. Ebbs, who had been employed by J. S. Waite & Co., is now at his home in Loveville.

The Loveville Literary Society will hold their next meeting two weeks from Friday, October 22, being Friday, November 5.

Mr. James Blackburn from Baltimore, Md., is visiting at his home in the vicinity of Loveville. He has been in Baltimore for two years. He will remain here until after the Democrats go up Salt river. CLAY.

Happenings at Howard.

TUESDAY, October 26.

Mr. David McCloskey, of Clarion Co., came here early last week to visit at A. L Holter's residence. He took sick and on Wednesday night he died. His remains were sent away on the express, Thursday night. Deceased has many friends here.

Mr. Z. T. Weirick, last week, moved into his new shop opposite the new Evangelical church, where he will do all kinds of work pertaining to the furniture trade. He has extensive experience in making fine chamber furniture as well as church, library, parlor and kitchen furniture. He will take orders and guarantees to please. All his work is done by hand and he does all the finishing himself, so only the best material is used. Call and compare prices. You will find them below wholesale prices in all hardwood furniture.

D. W. Pletcher and brothers, Christ and Nathaniel, are putting up a house at Millhall. They are very good workmen.

We have not heard of one Republican "kicker" since the ticket was put in the field. All is harmony. Blaine seems to put new life in all true patriotic hearts. His trip will bring many voters to the front who otherwise would stay at home. So rest assured that all is well on our side. ALERT.

Wedding Bells in Ferguson Township.

On Thursday evening the residence of Jonathan Musser, of Ferguson township, was made the scene of one of the most enjoyable events of the season, it being the marriage of his daughter Belle to Mr. Oscar Krebs in the presence of many invited guests from this and surrounding counties. After the ceremony and congratulations the door leading to the dining room was thrown open and all present were invited to partake of one of the best prepared feasts one could desire. The turkey prepared was a "monster" and must have been raised and grown with special care for the occasion. It was of the General Beaver kind and took well, which proved beyond a doubt that Mrs. Musser knew how to make things delicious. The presents were numerous and were selected with good judgment, for usefulness and great value.

The groom is a son of Mr. Levi Krebs of this county and a nephew of Judge Krebs of Clearfield county and is held in high esteem by those with whom he is acquainted. The bride is a lady of many accomplishments, well versed in music, both vocal and instrumental, and is thoroughly acquainted with every department of housekeeping, which is the grandest accomplishment a lady can have. After spending several hours in the most enjoyable manner the guests departed, long to remember the occasion that brought them together. E. M. J.

—The DAILY NEWS and the Bellefonte Republican are issued more regularly than any other papers in this county. Not once in a year do they miss making the regular mails. There is a reason for this. They are the only papers published in the county (always excepting the Fountain, which is non-political) that regularly and invariably tell the truth. As a rule, the cause for delaying the regular issue of a paper a day or two is to get in a political falsehood. This the Republican and DAILY NEWS never have occasion to do. So it can truthfully be said that those two papers are the only newspapers regularly issued in this county.

The Teachers at Work.

The select schools were in operation to a greater or less extent all summer, but nevertheless during the extended vacation the ideas of nine tenths of the school going population did not shoot very rapidly, and the great cause of education took a breathing spell, recuperating for a fresh start. When the first flush came on the foliage the smart academy youth and the young lady who is going to boarding school assumed wise airs, collected school books and were soon delving deep into the mysteries of science or the perplexitief of the classics. Not, however, until October did all America devote himself and herself to the cultivation of an education. Now, behold the spectacle. In vast and massive college buildings; and in elegant and imposing seminaries; in the ordinary, substantial school buildings; in every wayside school house the noble cause is in full sway, from the initiatory a. b. to the avenues of the most advanced education. We hope every boy and girl over six years and under sixteen years of age in Centre county is attending school. We think they should be compelled to do so. And just here we will remind our readers that any one who can read and has any time to spare during these winter evenings has the means at his command to advance in learning indefinitely.

Steady Prosperity.

While Bellefonte is just on the eve of a period of growth and increase of wealth, the year now drawing to a close has not been one of utter stagnation. The usual steady advance of our town in wealth and importance has continued and Bellefonte is hundreds of thousands of dollars richer than she was at this time last year. Her citizens have more money on deposit in the banks and probably one hundred thousand dollars have been invested in real estate in that time. On Curtin street Mr. Lew Shaffer's new residence is nearly completed. On Linn street Judge A. O. Furst made important and costly improvements, and several others made improvements of minor consequence. On Lamb street Mr. William Jenkins' double house was built the present year. The new Catholic church edifice and the new school house on Bishop street have involved large outlays of money. Mr. Sands' residence on Allegheny street is an important improvement. Then numerous small dwelling houses have sprung up in all parts of the town. The loss of the glass works will be largely restored before the year closes. This has been a very encouraging year.

—It was George Miller, not Harry Wilson, who behaved so heroically on the occasion of the destruction of the "white row" by fire on Wednesday morning. When Mr. and Mrs. James Solt were awakened by the smoke which filled the rooms on the second floor where they were sleeping, it was impossible to escape except through the windows. Mr. Solt made a rope of the bed cords, by means of which Mrs. Solt reached the ground. Mr. Solt was about to lower himself to the ground when he partly fell back into the room. He believes he would have perished in the flames had not George Miller come to his assistance. As it was his hands were burned. It is by no means certain that the flames originated in the cellar of Mr. Solt's house. Mr. Solt says there was nothing in the cellar which could possibly start a fire.

—The membership badge of the Grand Army, says an exchange, has been provided with an additional device adopted by the last National Encampment. The new badges are now ready for distribution through the proper channels. They are numbered and marked on the star with the letter "F." The device is a camp kettle and fire on the reverse side of the eagle, from which the star is suspended. The badges of Sheridan's and Wilson's cavalry, and Hancock's veteran corps marks, are on the reverse side of the star. This change has been promulgated in the new Commander-in-Chief's general order No. 2, and is to protect the members from imposition. National headquarters are established at Madison, Wisconsin.

—There is no particular harm in reading novels, provided the young people who are fond of this sort of literature are willing to ask and take counsel of older and wiser people than themselves. Some of the most instructive and elevating literature in the world is in the form of the novel. But the person who becomes so attached to light literature that he turns impatiently away from history, biography or other instructive and solid literature, is in great danger. The story taken in moderation is good; taken to the exclusion of everything else it is apt to breed intellectual shallowness and feebleness and to do lasting harm to its victim.

—It is encouraging to notice that nearly all the projected lines of railroad extend in this direction. We believe that it used to be said of Rome in its days of greatness that all roads led to that city. Perhaps now that all roads seem to lead to Bellefonte this town will be equally great in the near future.

—On Thursday, Dr. George H. Ashman of Philipsburg, was married to Miss Mary R. Hamlin, daughter of Rev. B. B. Hamlin, D. D., of Carlisle. The ceremony occurred at the residence of the bride's parents in Carlisle.

That the campaign orator will soon have a chance to rest his lungs.

That the new fall overcoats look handsome—especially those worn by Will Gray and Sam Brooks

That if it wasn't for the ladies this world would be awfully wicked.

That Harry Baney is about as happy as the most fortunate bridegroom possibly can be.

That there are quite a number of visitors in town as Bellefonte is pretty and attractive until the "last rose of summer" has ceased to bloom.

That our citizens are seen by the dozen dressed in hunting attire and carrying guns, but where, oh where is the game?

That the Williamsport dyeing establishment that sent a man through Bellefonte the other day to collect work is now engaged on about a hundred overcoats which, of course, will be as "good as new" when they are sent home.

That the new moon should now be visible in the western heavens.

That to-day is exactly 10½ hours in length.

That Curtin street is entirely too dark at night to be agreeable. The lights are too far apart.

That the Bellefonte public schools are progressing satisfactorily and that they have the best corps of teachers of any small town in the county.

—According to the September statement of Pennsylvania Railroad Voluntary Relief Department, just issued, employes of Tyrone Division received in benefits for accidents during that month $76.00, divided between nine persons, ranging in amount from 50 cents to $50.-000, and for disablement from sickness $53,60 divided between five employes and varying in amount from $16.0 to $36.-00. The total amount paid by the department for month of September, on all divisions, was for death, $12,250 00; accident, $2,582.50; sickness, 5,886.60; making a grand total of $19,719.10. The number of benefits paid from February 15, 1886, to October 20, 1886, are accident benefits, 938 and sick benefits, 2007. —Tyrone Herald.

—We have the authority of every member of the Kismet Club whom we have met, including Democrats and Republicans, to state that that organization is not Republican. The Centre Democrat this morning pronounced it Republican and the only excuse we can offer for the editor of that sheet is that he has permitted his enthusiasm to run away with his brains. There are four or five Democrats belonging to it.

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Purely Vegetable.

SAFER AND BETTER

I have been subject to severe spells of Congestion of the Liver, and have been in the habit of taking from 15 to 20 grains of calomel, which generally laid me up for three or four days. Lately I have been taking Simmons Liver Regulator, which gave me relief, without any interruption to business. J. HUGG, MIDDLEPORT, O.

BILIOUSNESS The REGULATOR never fails to cure. I most cheerfully recommend it to all who suffer from Bilious Attacks or any Disease caused by a disarranged state of the Liver. W. R. BERNARD, KANSAS CITY, Mo.

INDIGESTION I suffered intensely with Full Stomach, Headache, etc. A neighbor who had taken Simmons Liver Regulator told me it was a sure cure for my trouble. The first dose I took relieved me very much, and in one week's time I was as strong and hearty as I ever was. It is the best medicine I ever took for Dyspepsia. H. G. CRENSHAW, RICHMOND, VA.

CONSTIPATION Testimony of HIRAM WARNER, Chief-Justice of Ga.: I have used Simmons Liver Regulator for Constipation of my Bowels, caused by a temporary Derangement of the Liver, for the last three or four years, and always with decided benefit.

SEVEN WONDERS.

1st. Everybody wonders how it is we can manufacture a COMPLETE ANIMAL BONE PHOSPHATE and sell it at the low price of $25 per ton, in new bags delivered free on board car or boat at Philadelphia.

2d. Farmers wonder how we discovered just the proper combination of elements required to produce the needed results at the lowest cost.

3d. Those who use Baugh's $25 Phosphate, appreciate its value as a crop-producer, and wonder why any one believes the spiteful and jealous competitors who attack and vilify by false statements, in order to sell their own goods.

4th. Farmers are the best judges, they use the fertilizers. They know and freely testify to the wonderful results obtained from the use of Baugh's Celebrated $25 PHOSPHATE.

5th. The rapid and wonderful growth of its sales, in every section of the country, is another powerful evidence of its true worth.

6th. Others wonder what Baugh's New Process is, that enables them to furnish a $25 RAW BONE SUPER-PHOSPHATE. There is nothing mysterious about it. It is simply A PROCESS OF PERFECT ECONOMY: the result of combined practical tests of farm, factory and laboratory, accomplished through a long experience.

7th. The Seventh Wonder is greatest of all—why other makes, that are offered at low prices, do not become popular like the OLD RELIABLE, ATTRACTIVE and PERMANENT BAUGH'S $25 PHOSPHATE.

LAST The sum and substance of the whole matter is: Baugh's $25 Phosphate is second to none in Crop Value.

ESTIMATED VALUATIONS VARY AND ARE IN A GREAT MEASURE IMAGINARY.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—November 4.

—What a grand election day!

—Numerous drunks on Tuesday.

—The moon is bright in the evening.

—The Thanksgiving turkey is fattening.

—Palmer, Wolfe and the rest of them—oh, where are they?

—It was warm on Tuesday at both the North and South polls.

—Seats are being reserved for "Ten Nights in a Bar Room."

—Williamsport has now raised $25,000 for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Why did not Mr. Meek get an affidavit from the Kismet Club?

—The time for political affidavits is past, at least for several months.

—This must have been an off year in York county for raising Democrats.

—The Kismet Club serenaded Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jacobs Monday evening.

—It was shocking the way the Democrats broke the Sabbath by talking politics.

—There were a few disturbances at the polls on Tuesday, but no windows were broken.

—The meeting of the Sons of Veterans to-night will begin at eight o'clock.

—It is said that the coldest weather, of the winter will occur in January—quite probable.

—Lock Haven is also to have Charles H. Clark's company in "Ten Nights in a Bar Room."

—A man was suffocated in Lancaster Friday night by gas, which he blew out, forgetting to turn it off.

—It is positively certain that Rynder will not have the pleasure of representing this district in Congress.

—A more delightful election day—so far as the weather is concerned—was never experienced hereabouts.

—A. C. Hopkins telephones from Lock Haven that Patton has carried the district for Congress by 246 majority.

—A wheel was knocked off of a wagon in front of Josephs store, on Saturday. It was run into by another vehicle.

—The air was clear, pure and sparkling on Sunday and the view from McCoy's point must have been remarkable.

—While good Republicans were saying their prayers on Sunday the wicked Democrats were running around buying votes.

—The President has issued a proclamation designating Thursday, November 25, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

—Mrs. Cornelius M. Stewart's will bequeaths her $40,000,000 to her children, brothers and sisters, but she didn't leave us a cent.

—The new branch railroad to the operations of the Valentine Ore and Land Association will be built by the Axe Factory route.

—"Vacate or vindicate," that's the order, and in three days' time, too. The Kismet club say that they will vacate, but will take their own time to do it.

—Sheriff Rowan, of Philadelphia, has become insane. It is not known whether his insanity is permanent or only temporary. Of course, all hope that the latter may be the case.

—Everybody acknowledges that the Y. M. C. A. should have a building of its own as with that equipment it could be self-supporting and much more useful than it can otherwise be.

—There was a lively runaway on High street just as the 5:20 train arrived Monday afternoon. The horse run from West High street across the railroad track and was stopped near the bridge.

—Professor Howard, the lightning accountant, will give his introductory lecture in Y. M. C. A. hall at 7½ o'clock p. m. Wednesday. All who desire to learn the valuable art are invited to it.

—In the rush of other important events we have almost forgotten to record the fact of the arrival in Bellefonte of Mr. Nelson Lucas, from Washington, D. C. He says he likes to live in the Capital City.

—The arithmetical computations made by Prof. Chas. Howard, who is now in town, are wonderful. He can calculate interest and multiply long rows of figures as rapidly as he can write the answer.

—Cards are out for the marriage of Miss Adele Clerc, daughter of Rev. Dr. Clerc, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of Philipsburg, to George William Ogden. The event will occur on Thursday, November 18.

—The young people of Philipsburg seem to be in a marrying humor. The last event of the kind we heard of was that of Mr. Harry M. Martin foreman of the Ledger office, who was wedded to Miss Laura Shontz.

—The All Hallow E'en boy was abroad both Saturday and Monday evenings, his presence being noted by the gate removed from its fastenings, the steps taken a square away, the dummy figure hanged to a lamp post, and a dozen other ways.

Lessons from the Pulpit.

The discourse delivered by Rev. J. O. Davis, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church, on Sunday morning, was one which gave new beauty and meaning to the story about Zacchæus, the publican. It is contained in the first ten verses of the 19th chapter of St. Luke. He told what a publican was and said that even at this day in those Eastern countries the tax-collector will demand one-half the produce of the field for tax before the produce is gathered. Thus by some people the publican was abhorred and in the Scriptures "publican and sinner" are linked together as if one was thought to be as bad as the other. He described the money-grasping, business habits of Zacchæus, his receipt of the news of the restoration of sight to blind Bartimeus. Then he spoke of his resolve to go to see this wonder-working Jesus, his journey to a convenient place and the surprise of those who knew Zacchæus that he should go on such an errand. Short of stature, he did not let that hinder him, but, casting dignity and pride aside, he climbed a tree to see Jesus. Pride, he said, keeps many from baptism and confirmation. Zacchæus must have been surprised when the Master told him to make haste and come down for that day he was to abide in Zacchæus' house. Then followed the confession of Zacchæus and his full and free forgiveness. It was graphic and interesting.

Nothing could exceed the pleading tenderness of the evening sermon on the words in I Corinthians 1:2, "Called to be saints." The minister seemed to touch the heart chords when he explained that the duty devolved upon each one to be perfect just as our Father in heaven is perfect; to aim as high and even higher than the saintliness of the Christian martyrs. Do not be discouraged that it cannot be attained at once. The child does not give up the attempt to walk or talk merely because it is not able to do as well at once as older people are; or the student of Greek or Hebrew does not renounce the effort to learn merely because he cannot read at sight his Testament or Bible. After many attempts and failures both succeed. It being the anniversary when we remember all the saints, he spoke of the comforting dogma, often repeated with but faint realization of its meaning, "I believe in the communion of saints." It implies the union of all the church; those who have passed away have only gone before, and they pray for us. Waiting for us in the Paradise of God, they shall not come to us but we shall go to them. The sermon affected the congregation to emotion.

There was no lack of spiritual interest in the exercises in the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4 o'clock. The time was all occupied and passed rapidly. J. W. Gephart, Esq., was the leader.

Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., preached in the Methodist church, Sunday morning, on the subject announced on Saturday. "The Believer's Present and Future condition," and Presiding Elder George Leidy occupied the pulpit in the evening, the text which constituted the basis of his discourse being from John 3:16, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotton Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

The text of Rev. Chas. T. Steck's sermon, Sunday morning, was from Galatians 6:15: "For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything nor uncircumcision, but a new creature." It was a truly excellent sermon, and was listened to with close attention. He did not hold any service in the evening, being unwell.

Rev. William Laurie, D. D., delivered two of his usual instructive and learned sermons. The subject in the morning was, "Hearing and Doing," the text from which he drew his remarks being the 13th and 14th verses of the 2d chapter of Romans.

About the Churches.

Many church services are appointed for the Episcopal church this week. Two services were held Monday (All Saints day); evening prayer will be said Wednesday evening with instruction from the rector; Bible instruction will be given Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and evening prayer will be said in the church on Friday at 7.30 p. m. Next Sunday evening the service in the church will begin at 7 o'clock.

We believe that the revival meetings in the Methodist church continue every evening. As they have been conducted so regularly and with such large attendance all through this exciting season, it is believed that a larger interest and greater success will follow when the excitement has subsided.

Rev. W. H. H. Snyder has made preparations to conduct church work very actively when he takes charge of the Reformed congregation here on the 1st of December. He is peculiarly fortunate in becoming the shepherd over a flock that have always co-operated in the most perfect harmony with their overseer and leader. Revs. King and DeLong, his predecessors, were active pastors, excellent gentlemen, good citizens and were beloved by their people. Everything indicates that a gentleman endowed with the brilliant abilities shown by Rev. Snyder will succeed beyond reasonable expectations.

—It is reported that Mr. Elisha Reynolds, brother of Major Wm. F. Reynolds, is dangerously ill.

HURRAH—H!!

POLITICAL POINTS IN THE TOWN, COUNTY AND DISTRICT.

Receiving the News.

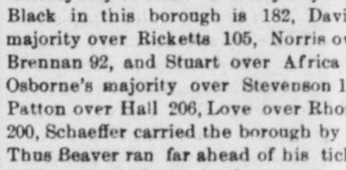
There were several places Tuesday night where the news was received By far the largest crowd was in the Republican club rooms, where Mr. Malin manned the telephone and Col. Hastings and Col. Keller gave orders to the crowd. In Recorder Bible's office J. W. Gephart, Esq., Frank B. Blair, and a dozen others were gathered. The Watchman sanctum was well filled and the Republican sanctum contained its quota. The crowds mixed very well, Republicans lounging among the Democrats and vice versa.

When the vote of the borough was counted everybody seemed to be very glad that Gen. Beaver had run ahead of his majority in 1882. His majority over Black in this borough is 182, Davies' majority over Ricketts 105, Norris over Brennan 92, and Stuart over Africa 86. Osborne's majority over Stevenson 112, Patton over Hall 206, Love over Rhone, 200, Schaeffer carried the borough by 24. Thus Beaver ran far ahead of his ticket in the town and also in the county.

The first real substantial intelligence that was received to meet the expectations of those who were confident that the Republicans had achieved a grand victory in the State was a telegram of congratulation from Republican headquarters in Philadelphia to Gen. Beaver, congratulating him on his triumphant election. This and succeeding intelligence of a still more confident character set the Republicans wild with delight, and all the news continued so good that the enthusiasm was kept up. Bells were rung, enormous bonfires were built, serenade and torch-light processions were improvised and spontaneous elation reigned supreme.

The tabulated returns given in this paper to-day from every voting precinct in the county except the first ward of Philipsburg explains how the results were attained. Gen. Patten leads the Republican ticket in the county, and all the usual Democratic majorities were greatly reduced.

AND PATTON



SAILED RIGHT THERE.

The Vote on Congress.

The vote on Congress in this district is estimated very closely as follows:

Clinton for Patton	87
Union " "	830
Clearfield "	150
Mifflin " "	283
	1350
Centre for Hall	38
Elk " "	1121
	1159

Patton's majority—191.

The Governor Elect.

General Beaver, the Governor elect, composedly read a "Life of Abraham Lincoln," Tuesday evening, and did not seem to manifest any great concern as to whether he was elected or not. Before he had received the exact figures, he stated that he would be at his office attending to business next morning whether the result was favorable or otherwise. Wednesday morning he received fifty or sixty telegrams, largely of a congratulatory character. They assure him that his majority in the State exceeds 45,000. The official majority in Philadelphia is over 27 000, and in Allegheny county over 9,000.

—The alarm of fire Monday night at 10 o'clock was caused by the flame in a lamp in the Snyder sisters' millinery store blazing up very high. The young ladies were frightened and ran out doors crying fire. Among those who came to their assistance was Israel Sternberg, and he succeeded in playing the hero in first-class style. He took the blazing lamp from the table, carried it out doors, placed it gently on the pavement and let it blaze away until all the oil was burned out. When the excitement had subsided it was found that he had saved not exactly this globe on which we live, but the lamp globe.

—At James Harris & Co's hardware store Tuesday night coffee and sandwiches were served to an immense throng of people, while the returns were received. Ten gallons of coffee were consumed, and the young ladies in the Telephone Exchange say it was excellent.

Lines from Loveville.

Mrs. Whippo, of Loveville, spent Sunday at her father's house in Hublersburg.

Mr. Asbury Wilson, a student of the State College, was called to his home in Loveville by the illness of his mother. He will remain here until she is better.

Mr. Ebbs, who is working in Altoona, was at his home here on Sunday.

Mr. William Cole is one of those who are now blaming themselves for allowing the bad weather of October 27th to keep them at home. He wanted to see Blaine, but the clouds and rain frightened him.

Mrs. David Rumbarger, from Nebraska, is visiting her friends in the vicinity of Loveville. She expects to remain for some time.

Mrs. Iddings, of Unionville, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Rumbarger, in Loveville.

In our lines last week we made a mistake in saying that Isaiah Beck's corn averaged 129 bushels to the acre. It was 120.

One day last week we noticed five persons husking corn on the farm owned by Mr. John Wilson. About the middle of the afternoon one of the party kindled a fire which, had the wind been strong, would have resulted in the destruction of Mr. Wilson's barn and all his corn. The gentleman who originated the fire was smoking and stuck his pipe in the shock with the fire in it. The shock blazed up and also the grass and weeds surrounding it. We found out since that the man's Sunday coat was in the fire which made him fight so desperately.

CLAY.

Unionville Items.

We are still having fine weather, which is a great aid to parties who have contracted to do masonery or carpenter work this fall.

The work at the abutments for the iron bridge is progressing and they are sufficiently elevated to be out of the reach of water in case of a freshet.

B. F. Leathers has the digging done and material on hand for the mason to begin work on the foundation for the new store building.

We are sorry to learn that Wm. Reesides contemplates moving his store to Snow Shoe, in the near future, where he has formed a partnership with Mr. Enoch Hugg.

Mr. Basford, the miller at the Unionville mill, is about to move his family here from Lewistown, Pa.

Albert Ammerman, son of Rachel Ammerman, dec'd, will move this week from here to Huston township.

Thomas Fisher has moved into his new house near his father's residence.

The "DAILY NEWS" has frequently suggested to capitalists of Bellefonte, the importance of utilizing the car works of that place, in the establishing of some good manufacturing business, yet they stand back.

Now we know a party who is ready and willing to establish an extensive business in the manufacture, out of steel, of a very staple article by a greatly improved method, and we think the car works would answer the purpose, and the business would be a boom to Bellefonte, and profitable to those who are willing to raise the funds for its establishment. Who is ready to investigate? J.

The Meeting of Council.

The borough council got right down to business Monday evening and rushed it through in good style. Mr. S. A. Brew was elected president pro tem., the other members present being Messrs. Robert Hepburn, Wm. Hillibish, H. H. Harshberger, Ed. Brown and L. T. Munson.

Chief Burgess H. S. Hale recommended that the police be uniformed, stating that there was sufficient borough funds in his possession to provide for the first outlay for such outfit. Council, by motion, approved the suggestion of the Chief Burgess, with the understanding that the uniforms be the property of the borough, that they be purchased with funds belonging to the borough and now in hands of the burgass, and that they be worn only while the police are on duty.

On motion, the Street committee were instructed to give notice to all persons living on Howard street, between Allegheny and Spring, to repair their pavements.

The Finance committee were instructed to open negotiations looking to the purchase of a lot on Logan street for the Undine hose house.

Notes Picked up at the Polls.

By that we do not mean the North pole, but the election polls.

Col. D. H. Hastings was at the polls early.

So was James Schofield.

The Messrs. Dale heard many inquiries for stickers for Beal and Patton and furnished them liberally.

Members of the Nail Workers' Beaver Club discharged their duty faithfully for their candidate for Governor. They remained near the polls all day working in his interest.

—Improvements are in progress to the gallery in Humes' Hall. The seats are being changed and arranged so that a view of the stage can be obtained from any part of it. These changes will be completed by Saturday. They are being made at the expense of Gregg Post and it is expected that Mr. Humes will put in new scenery soon.

"Daily News" Relief Fund.

From Monday's Daily News.

The committee of ladies (Mrs. Charles McCafferty, Miss Jane McCalmont and Mrs. E. T. Tuten) who are distributing the DAILY NEWS relief fund in aid of those who lost their property by the fire, have visited these families and find some of them deplorably destitute. Some of them are entirely without clothing of their own and are dependent on neighbors almost as destitute as themselves. Contributions of clothing for men, women, boys, girls and infants are asked for—especially clothing for small children. They are also living with their relatives or acquaintances in places too small even for the original occupants. Of course, they have not the means to provide themselves with even the simplest articles of furniture and they are people who cannot get much credit at the stores, as it will require their best efforts during this winter to provide food and fuel to keep themselves from starvation and cold. This necessitates aid at once, and unless it is given the people will have to suffer. At the same time due caution should be observed and aid that is given should be extended through this committee, or at least the committee should be informed of any special contributions that are made. Thus it will be distributed according to the real needs of the sufferers, of which the committee will keep themselves informed. The following contributions are acknowledged:

J. J. Lucas	$1 00
H. Y. Stuzer	1 00
Valentines' Store Co., Lim	2 00
	$4 00
Previously acknowledged	$11 6 00
Total	$120.00

TUESDAY.

Contributions received since Monday's issue:

F. D. Cunningham	$1 00
Montgomery & Co	5 00
Cash	50
J. M. Ketchline	5 00
J. A. Harper & Co	5 00
James Schofield	1 00
	$15 00
Previously acknowledged	$1 0 00
Total	$135 00

Supposed Horse Theft.

On Wednesday evening last says the Huntingdon Local News, a stranger secured lodgings at the Girard House, in this place, registering as H. C. Jones, but giving no place of residence. On Thursday morning he hired a horse and buggy from L. E. Port, liveryman, to drive over the adjacent country for the avowed purpose of purchasing a car load of cows, representing himself as a stock dealer and shipper. He also represented that he had just sent several car loads of mules over the H. & B. T. R. R. to the eastern markets, and that he would wind up the season's business with a couple of day's more work. He promised to return the team by Saturday last.

Failing to return by yesterday noon, Mr. Port began an investigation, the results of which show that the man is evidently a fraud, and obtained the team with the express purpose of never returning it. Acting upon the suggestion of friends and feeling convinced that the team has been stolen, Mr. Port has taken steps to overhaul Mr. Jones and has sent out notices all over the State describing the team, and offering a reward of $50 for information that will lead to its return. We append the following description: The animal is a bay mare, about 15 hands high, with right hand hip a little low, white around right hind pasteur, heavy black mane and tail, piece out of right ear and smaller piece out of left ear. Buggy was an Elliptic spring top, lined with blue cloth, with cloth cushion, Courtlandt, N. Y., make.

—A funny event happened the other evening. A prominent gentleman walked home quite late and when he reached the gate leading to his residence he stopped. "I must go back to town again," he was heard to say; and he turned and retraced his steps. The real truth is that he had made an engagement to call at a certain place for his wife and go home with her. He had, however forgotten all about his better-half, only remembering her when he reached home.

—Prof. Chas. Howard, of Montgomery, Alabama, spent Sunday in Bellefonte and will remain here this week. He is at present engaged in educational work and will probably arrange to give a series of lectures explaining his novel and rapid method of arithmetical or business calculations. He is also a minister of the Free Will Baptist church and has engaged in Evangelistic work in many places. On Sunday evening he preached in the United Brethren church.

—Dr. A. Hibler had a severe fall near Mr. F. Potts Green's house on Saturday. He stepped on a slippery leaf which passed from beneath his feet as quickly as roller skates and he fell all at once and with considerable violence. No bones were broken, but he felt quite sore afterwards.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jacobs came home from Philadelphia on Saturday evening. As our readers are aware they were married last Thursday in that city. Mrs. Jacobs was Miss Mame Bradley. She is a sister of Dr. W. H. Bradley, editor of the Philadelphia Weekly Press.

—Five hundred thousand fire bricks are shipped monthly by the Sandy Ridge Fire Company's works.

Personal Pencilings.

R. A. Beck says he voted—the right ticket.

A. B. Steele raised very superior celery this season.

Mr. George Rowan spent Friday in Hollidaysburg.

Mrs. J. A. Woodcock is visiting friends in Williamsport.

Mr. Barnhurst, of Philadelphia, spent Sunday in Bellefonte.

Lany DeWitt started off on a hunting expedition at noon Tuesday.

Hardman P. Harris is at home again after a very extended absence.

Miss Nanny Schrock departed Saturday morning for a visit in Pittsburg.

Mr. Joe Montgomery departed for Philadelphia on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, of Philadelphia, are guests at J. V. Thomas' residence.

Al. Dale, Esq., is recovering from a serious attack of ulcerated sore throat.

Mr. Lemuel Brooks, who has been transacting business in Pittsburg, is at home.

Harry West, of Smith town, can thresh more than a thousand bushels of grain per day.

Miss Annie Orvis departed Tuesday to visit her sister, Mrs. Canfield, in Jenkintown, Pa.

General Beaver, the next Governor of Pennsylvania, arrived in Bellefonte Monday evening.

Mrs. W. E. Burchfield and son, of Philipsburg, are visiting here at Mr. S. T. Shugert's residence.

Mr. D. C. Monroe obtained James G Blaine's autograph while that gentleman was in Bellefonte.

Mr. James Curry, of Virginia, who has been visiting his home in this place, departed Saturday morning.

Clement Dale and James L. Hamill, Esqs., spoke to the Republicans of Curtin township Thursday evening.

Mr. Al. Baney, of Philipsburg, who was in town to attend his brother's marriage, departed on Friday afternoon.

Aaron Williams Esq., came home from his western tour Wednesday—just too late to vote. He looks exceedingly well.

John Powers, Jr., went away on Saturday evening towards Tyrone. How much further he journeyed we know not.

Mr. John Kenyon, of Philipsburg, came over to Bellefonte on Saturday to see what makes politics so warm hereabouts.

Miss Hobbs, the fair operator of the Osceola Telephone Exchange, after visiting in town for several days, departed Friday.

G. G. Mattern, of Scotia, and E. C. Poorman, of Milesburg, talked together in front of the Bush House Wednesday morning.

Mr. John Z. Voris, of Northumberland, who has been the guest of Mr. Francis Speer, departed for his home this morning.

Miss Kate Jackson, daughter of George Jackson, Esq., is at home again after three weeks absence in Lancaster, Pa., and other cities.

Hon. L. A. Mackey spent part of Tuesday morning in Bellefonte. He has been in this county for several days past and was on his way home.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell are guests at the home of Major W. F. Reynolds on Linn street. Mr. Campbell is one of the most extensive wool manufacturers in this country.

Jesse Richards, of Philipsburg, passed through town on his way to State College on Friday. He will attend that institution during the Winter and also instruct a class in phonography.

Mr. John Bartruff is at home after quite an extended business trip through the State and in New York City. He is engaged in the interest of the Dexter spring, and he says there is a great bonanza in it for him.

Mr. Sam Brooks is at home again after spending three months traveling in the interest of the brief music system which he represents. We thought he was in Chicago with his brother, Lemuel. Such, however, was not the case as he has been in Johnstown most of the time.

Mr. William Hastings was one of the fortunate citizens of Bellefonte who witnessed the dedication of the famous Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World. He showed us a memento of the occasion this morning in the shape of a small book containing the most beautiful engraving we have seen of the colossal statue.

Miss Lizzie Reinhart, the very attractive young lady who has been clerking for the Jacobs' Brothers in their confectionery and ice cream parlors, returned to her home in Danville, Pa., on the 6 o'clock train Wednesday. She expects to remain there and her absence from town will cause a vacancy in many hearts which time alone can eradicate.
